MEXICAN RIOTING RENEWED

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Nov. 11.—A frenzied mob of 500 Mexicans attacked American property here to-day, destroying it and defying Americans to stay in the town upon penalty of their lives. With cries of "Down with Americs," and "Death to all Americans" the mob surged through the streets plying the torch and throwing rocks and stones.

The disorder still go into thousands of dollars, but the Mexican police stood by while the depredation was going on. They declared that they could not cope with the numbers in the mob.

It looked for a time as though the outbreak here would eclipse the one in Mexico City. Many of those in the mob carried firearms.

Upon a report to the Capital government authorities a section of the Fourth Federal Cavalry was sent here to prevent further rioting. The troopers found a state approaching anarchy prevailing when they arrived. The mob was in possession of a portion of the city.

Texas Rangers were moved southward to-day to be on the ground in case actual hostilities were inaugurated. Many Americans in Northern Mexico made ready to cross the border, owing to the increasing attitude adopted toward them by Mexicans. Stories of the anti-American feeling was carried into the lonely ranges of Chihuahua by couriers. There are many life international pinches along the border country where Mexicans and Americans are employed indiscriminately, and it is feared that the dislike which has always existed will give way to gun battles, typical of the old days.

"Well, how are things down at Oyster Bay, now that you're the Democratic boss?" said Littleton. "They don't call it Oyster Bay any more." "Well, what do they call it?" "Blue Point," he replied.

GREEN READY FOR CRIMSON

By SID WHIPPLE.

A large contingent of Dartmouth has left Boston. From Hanover to the Hub is a far cry, but while the daily men upon whom the Green depends for the most consistent playing are down here, those who are unfortunately left in Hanover are busy propelling the "thought waves" suggested by Coach Haughton over the 120 miles intervening between the two places.

The rest of the squad arrives to Boston to-night, accompanied by several hundred rooters. By the time the game is called to-morrow over 1,500 men from Hanover will be here to cheer the Green to victory.

Coach Haughton and his men arrived in Boston, after one of the hardest days in the history of his team. Following signal practice in the afternoon, the eight men who are the bulwarks of the team left behind them the college on the hill, and came down the long line to Boston.

From the North station they went at once to Ashmadale, where they established a camp at the Woodland Park Hotel, and began at once taking food for the mind, and food for thought. It was decided by those who were in authority that the team would take a course in psychic phenomena before the game, although it was admitted that the members, at least some of them, are in delightful communication with the town in New Hampshire.

May Be Battle of Brains.

If the suggestions carried out that the students of each institution sit their respective teams by thought waves, the contest will resolve itself into one between keen minds, and the brightest brains will win out. This puts a new light into the game, and will make the affair more or less a debating match.

At any rate, the team went to bed, collectively, separately, and individually, within twenty minutes after arriving at the hotel. The men didn't even stay up long getting into communication with the people who sends the sleep waves, so they say, to look you could hear a pin drop.

HARVARD AGREES TO THE YALE LIST OF GAME OFFICIALS

The Yale-Harvard controversy over the officials for the annual game has been settled by Harvard's act in finally agreeing to the list which will have charge of the Yale-Princeton game to-morrow. They are: Referee, Mr. Langford, Trinity; umpire, Mr. Fultz, Brown; field judge, Mr. Templeton, Bowdoin; head linesman, Mr. Dunn, University of Pennsylvania.

Fultz, an old American League fielder, formerly capitained and played halfback on the Brown University eleven. This is the first time he has been an official at a Yale-Harvard-Princeton game, yet he has been chosen for the most trying task of all, that of the umpire.

HELD UP, ROBBED BY HIGHWAYMAN

Charles E. Rand, a prominent Savin Hill citizen, was held up and robbed by a highwayman within a hundred feet of the former's home on Grampian Way, in Dorchester, last evening. Edward J. Dalliff is under arrest, charged with the crime. The prisoner says he is twenty-nine years old and lives in Medford. The police think he came from Maine.

Mr. Rand says he observed that he was being followed in the city just evening, and that the man boarded the car to look for home. When Mr. Rand left the car in Dorchester and was walking down Savin Hill avenue he heard footsteps behind him and knew he was being followed. Suddenly he was stunned by a violent blow in the back of the head, and the person who had reached into gold. "Give me your money!"

The robber took $11 out of Mr. Rand's pocket and then said: "I want that watch and chain."

He took the watch and chain and ran away.

LIBERALS FIGHT FOR REDMOND

By WILLIAM T. STEAD.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The utter collapse of the conference between the leaders of the two great political parties, organized shortly after the death of King Edward in an endeavor to settle the controversy over the right of the House of Lords to veto measures passed by the House of Commons, has brought about a political crisis. The announcement that the conferees were unable to agree was just been made.

In the AMERICAN I predicted the collapse of the conferences three weeks ago when such a result was very sharply denied by the leading authorities here, but it will be found that the last session of the conference was devoted only to the single point of how to make known its failure diplomatically; it was a curious attempt at a compromise.

Four Liberals and four Conservatives met in one room; they could keep everything running smoothly and prevent the chaos which the Liberal would follow an effort abolish the House of Lords. It was shared ever to suppose that they would reach a sincere agreement. The appointment of four rock ribbed Democrats and four hidebound Republicans to make a settlement of the tariff question in the United States would be just about as farcical.

People Insistent.

The recent success of the English Liberals has strengthened their determination to have their way with the House of Lords and it is the almost universal belief that if the Unionists force an appeal to the country again the verdict would be far more decisive than it was ten months ago. The people have been defrauded this time that their will shall prevail. The odds at present are very much in favor of a general election in December.

After more than twenty meetings the leaders of the opposition parties arrived at the conclusion, first that the House of Lords as a branch of the finance must be recognized, and second that, in case of a dispute arising between the two houses, the dispute must be referred to a joint committee in which the Government of the day must have a majority.

Home Rule the Stumbling Block.

What is believed to have been the fatal point of difference rose from the fuels once by the Unionist leaders that in all questions of vital, constitutional change, such as Home Rule, there should be an appeal from the decision of the joint committee either to referendum or to a general election. This proposition the Liberals point blank refused to consider not as much upon its merits as upon the indisputable fact that if they conceded this they would at once have to reckon with Redmond. The sole question remaining therefore, was whether the Unionist leaders were prepared to concede the Home Rule should be carried over the veto of the House of Lords by the majorities of the joint conference.

If the Unionists had even a fair fighting chance they would have rejected this Liberal proposals. But they were mortally afraid that a another general election success could not be hoped for. Their press is disheartened. Their organization is unsatisfactory. Tariff reform is hopelessly discredited. If they should fight and lose they could no longer resist the practical annihilation of the House of Lords. Their final decision is not before me as I write, but the opinion prevails that, unless King George can use his influence as he was coming down the steps he fell. He was placed in the police ambulance, but died before he reached the hospital.

King Takes No Hand.

The King, so far as all appearances go, has taken no hand in the matter. He is young and inexperienced. If his father had been alive he certainly would have done his utmost to bring about a compromise. Just before his death he is reported to have said:

"The Liberal ministers think that I share their views. The leaders of the opposition think that I share theirs; but both of them forget that I am the King of all the people of England."

In that capacity he might have intervened as peacemaker, and in so doing have still further strengthened the foundations of the monarchy. As things are, the balance wheel of the constitution seems to be out of gear.

I saw Mr. Asquith, the Prime Minister, for a few minutes at the close of the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Mansion House. He had not spoken with effect at the banquet. He seldom does on such occasions. His speech was gunshot but left the impression that there still was hope of a compromise. His references to Paris were meaning, but it is believed that he already knew that the offer of a timely loan would secure the acceptance of the British ultimatum.

LANCIA LANDS TIEDEMAN CUP

By J. C. Kerrison.

RACE COURSE, Savannah, Ga., Nov. 11.—The battles for the Savannah trophy of 276.8 miles and the Tiedeman cup of 190.3 miles, curtain raisers for the great international grand prize race of to-morrow, were run off to-day over the finest race course in America, judging from the speed of the fifteen contestants.

The Fiat car, driven by Hughes, took the lead at the start, and at fifteen-second intervals came the Marmon, driven by Resemann; the Stearns, with Hedding at the wheel; Fal, driven by Gelnaw; Marmon, handled by Dawson, and Fal, with Pierce up.

The E. M. F. driven by Cohen, was first away in the Tiedeman, followed by Wright in a Maxwell, Knight in a Cole, Knipper in a Lancia, Witt in a E. M. F., Dooley in a Maxwell, Endicutt in a Cole and Costello in a Maxwell.

The Lancia driven by Knipper won the Tiedeman cup.

Knipper's time was 3 hours 15 minutes 22.67 seconds. Knipper's average time was a fraction over 58 miles an hour.

On account of the terrific pace that was set only five cars of the eight starters were in the race at the finish of 190.3 mile contest.

Battle for the Lead.

Dawson was given a grand ovation as he drove his Marmon over the line at the start of the Tiedeman. He responded to the wave by jumping to the first in the very first lap taking first place by a lead of 30 seconds over Heineman.

As the cars came down the back stretch Redding came up from fourth to second position, locked horns with Dawson and took the lead. It did not last long, however, for before the laps was ended Dawson was again leading, this time by three seconds.

The leaders had averaged 62½ miles an hour.

By the completion of the fourth lap, 69.2 miles, Dawson lead the field by almost two minutes, with Redding second, Gelnaw third, Pierce fourth, Hughes fifth and Heineman sixth.

They came in a special train, but it was too late.

GRAND JURY HEARS FALL DEATH STORY

The tragic story of the double murder in the office of District Attorney Pelletier yesterday was to-day presented to the Grand Jury by the District Attorney and nine of his assistants.

It is a dramatic story, tinged with pathos. It is a story of love, wrongdoing, an attempt at reparation, misunderstanding, murder.

Walter H. Fall the young man who fired the fatal shots that snuffed out the life of Police Sergeant Frederick Schlichaby and Frank A. Rees, was in love with Esther H. Pegg. The girl is a mere child of fourteen years, Pegg and she while he boarded in the family in Dorchester had some sweethearts.

The girl was unusually comely. She looks older than she is. She was in love with Fall. He is a good-looking young man. He ended in the high school education outside studies that made him proficient in French and Spanish. He had some real estate which had been bequeathed to him by an aunt. He had a good position at the State House.

Pleaded to Marry Girl.

But like an avenging Nemesis the past pursued him because of his wrong doing with Esther Pegg. It is said paid out $1,200 in trying to make things right. He had pleaded to be allowed to marry the little girl who had become the mother of his child.

The purpose that was carried out partially at least, in the district attorney's office surrounded by the officials who execute the criminal law, was probably formed last Tuesday in the same building.

The fact became known to-day. Judge Robert Grant made it known. It may have been that when Fall went yesterday to the Court House, armed, Judge Grant was included in his scheme to obtain what his distorted mind looked upon as justice.

For half an hour last Tuesday Fall was in the private room of Judge Grant imploring him to be allowed to marry Esther Pegg. Last March, when Fall was arrested on a charge preferred by the girl, Judge Grant of the Probate Court was petitioned for his consent to the marriage of the couple. The judge refused for what he considered good reasons.

Case Dragged in the Courts.

The case dragged on in the courts—the shadow of his errors always looming black and grim over the young man.

Then it looked as though the trouble might be brushed away. District Attorney Pelletier had reached the conclusion that the best way out of the matter was to allow the young couple to get married in order to do this it was necessary to get the consent of Judge Grant.

Fall went to the court house on Tuesday for that purpose. He had been brooding over his misfortune until his nerves were on edge and his mind tottering. He pleaded with Judge Grant for his permission to marry the girl he had wronged.

SEEK MISSING GIRL IN WOODS

AMBURY PARK, N. J., Nov. 11.—After an unsuccessful search of the woods surrounding this place in which they were assisted by 100 men, the police and officials began dragging Dead Lake, in the hope of finding some trace of Marie Smith, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, of Whitesville, who has been missing for several days.

The startling party broke up late to-night with each headed by a constable or county sheriff tramped through the entire lake, beating the bushes with long sticks. No trace of the missing child was found, a report that reached Whitesville at the effect that Marie, a short time after she disappeared while on her way home from school, had been seen standing on the bridge crossing Dead Lake. She soon hurried to that place and began dragging the lake.

'LIVING COST' HITS BROWN

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 11—W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown University, declares in his annual report to the corporation of the university that the high cost of living makes the present salaries of professors inadequate and that immediate steps should be taken by the corporation to provide for a larger endowment fund.

"The cost of living in Providence, as elsewhere, says Dr. Faunce, has enormously increased. Our professors have relied away to other institutions all around us. Fourteen of our most valuable teachers in the last five years. Of these is called away in the last two years ago were single men living in a dormitory are now men with homes and families dependent upon them for support.

The meeting had been postponed from September in order that those members of the corporation might be present at the inauguration of President John Hay Faunce, in his report, made reference to the proposed change in the charter, making the university undenominational instead of Baptist. He suggested that the university should secure a petition from all its members before the charter change, in order to obviate all misunderstanding. Since the opposition to the change was based on the belief that it was proposed in order to secure a larger share of the pension fund from the Carnegie

RULES AGAINST "NAGGING" WIFE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A wife who "nags" her husband caused him a legal separation from him merely because he gets mad about it. Justice Crane firmly decided this in refusing to grant Mrs. Edith Y. Robinson's plea for separation from George I. Robinson, a lawyer.

A husband may be over-jealous and suspicious, he may suffer tantalizing treatment, even use strong language and physically rebuke his wife, without making Justice Crane believe that he (the husband) is entirely at fault.

The courtly court, in his firm but gentle ruling on the Jacobson case, says that love, too harped, is at the bottom of their differences. And he gallantly explains the husband's jealousy on the ground of the wife's charm and beauty.

The case occupied Justice Crane's time in Supreme Court, in fact, for several days last month. The defendant replied to his wife's suit by laying much of the blame on his sister's husband, Joseph Bailey, who, he said, was entirely too much in Mrs. Robinson's company.

Calls Jealousy Unwarranted.

Mrs. Robinson insisted that her husband's jealousy was unwarranted. So did Bailey. So did Justice Crane, so far as an actual wrongdoing on the part of Mrs. Robinson and Mr. Bailey was concerned.

"I am justified in drawing reasonable inferences from the facts," said the court, "confined to single incidents," says the Court "as they slow to me and the slightly charged atmosphere of the home due to the excessive jealousy of the husband and the aggravating conduct and tantalizings of the wife, coupled with the self-will and excitability of both.

"Hard and fast rules of law cannot be made for marital conduct any more than be given such varying temperaments and dis-positions as we find in men and women. The Court must judge life as it is and not as it ought to be.

"When the wife tantalizes her husband into a temper, the resulting hasty words and violent deeds may not amount to cruel and inhuman conduct, as the law uses those words.

"I find that the plaintiff's charges are, in the main, true, and likewise that the provocation alleged by the defence is substantiated by the evidence.

Wife Blamed by Court.

"Without doubt the defendant passionately loved and still loves his wife; that he is of a very jealous disposition cannot be denied, and is perhaps explained by her attractions; that her casual meetings with Bailey, a companionship with women objected to by her husband, and her repeated refusal to tell him of her daily whereabouts caused the quarrels complained of, is proven by the evidence.

"If the defendant quarrelled with his wife, she provoked it; if he used improper language, it was in a temper which she did little to pacify; if he struck her, so also she struck him, and on those occasions before he had raised a hand to her; if he pulled down pictures, so did she; if he got excited and profane, she, on the other hand, repeatedly refused to tell of her goings during the day, and thrice removed the defendant's money from his pockets.

"I will refuse her a decree of separation because of her treatment of him. The complaint I do not dismiss, but refuse the relief asked, directing, however, that the defendant support his wife and child by proper allowance."

SOME OF THE THINGS THAT CONSTITUTE "NAGGING"

Constant aggravating and exasperating treatment.

Refusal to tell your husband where you have been all day.

SEEKS SAFEGUARD FOR MEN OF SUBMARINES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—As a measure of protection of human life in cases of accident on submarine boats of the United States Navy, the Navy Department has decided to designate a board to investigate this whole matter. It is believed that the equipment of submarine boats with oxygen helmets and the installation of apparatus capable of ensuring that life-sustaining fluid on board such vessels would result in the saving of many lives.

LADY ROSSLYN IS 'HOME AGAIN'

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The Countess of Rosslyn, who was formerly the beautiful Anna Robeson, an American actress, arrived in New York aboard the Adriatic. With a party of friends, numerous trunks and a maid, she is a guest at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

It is her first visit here in six years, and her friends who greeted her at the pier declare that she looks younger and prettier than when she left these shores to become the bride of the English nobleman.

She was smartly attired in a blue serge traveling tailormade suit with hand embroidered lingerie blouse and a smart blue toque. When seen shortly after her arrival she said:

"I am so glad to get back to America. Six years is a long time to be away and I just concluded that instead of spending the London foggy months, in Egypt or on the Riviera or in Italy, as I generally do, I would come over here and see all my old friends again.

"Is there any chance of your going again on the American stage?" was asked.

"I still have a great fondness for the stage, and one of the things I shall do while here is to see all the new American plays. I wouldn't mind going back to a part that exactly suited me. A light comedy part such as I had with Sir Charles Wyndham. But whether I shall or not is a matter yet undecided. I miss my friends and comforts from all parts of America, and also abroad."

And what of marriage—is there no engagement in the pretty young woman was asked. She shook her head coyly and seemed to blush a bit as she said best fashion.

"No, no I am not engaged."

"She has had dozens of offers that I know of," a pretty young English friend who crossed with Lady Rosslyn interrupted. "And I know that if she wanted to marry she could marry any day."

"Why, what do you think?" Lord Rosslyn seized her twice after she had declared him to remain with him, but she refused to do so," added this friend. "Isn't that so, Anna?"

FATHER AND SON DROWN TOGETHER

PORTSMOUTH, R. I., Nov. 11.—Joseph St. Germain, fifty-nine years old, and his son, Peter St. Germain, thirty-two, both plane makers of Fall River, were drowned and Arthur Duhamel, thirty-five, a blacksmith of that city, barely managed to save himself when the boat in which they were fishing sank, a quarter of a mile from shore, in the Sakonnet river, off Island Park. Neither of the St. Germains could swim, and according to Duhamel, sank almost immediately.

SOUSA CONSCIOUS ONLY TO MUSIC ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 11.—"I have only one request to make. Please don't ring that unmusical gong on the way to the hospital." These words were said by John Philip Sousa, the noted bandmaster, as he was being lifted into an ambulance. Sousa was only semi-conscious, but his musical nature revolted at the sound of the ambulance bell, and he registered the protest with effort. At the hospital it is believed he is suffering from malaria. He is expected to leave the hospital in two weeks.

POLICEMAN WHEELS MAN THROUGH TOWN

Eugene Mitchell, a member of the police force of Hull, paid an election bet, that he lost on the state vote for Governor, by giving John Knowles, one of the three rival Democrats, ride through the village on a wheelbarrow. LINA CAVALIERI SHUNS AMERICA

Lina Cavalieri has decided to disappoint not only a host of opera goers but the thousands of people interested enough in seeing the woman who included that Robert W. Chanler sings over to her his entire fortune before she consented to marry him. Despite the romantic love affair perpetrated to understand the singer has contracted for concert with the Boston Opera Company and other bookings for her tour in this country.

An unwillingness to be "one subject" drawn more by curiosity than to enjoy her singing is said to be one reason for Cavalieri's decision to remain in Europe this season. It is reported that she will visit this country again. She is scheduled to sing at Monte Carlo and at St. Petersburg this Winter, and there are rumors of an eight weeks' engagement in Buenos Ayres at an enormous salary.

BOSTON'S 1915 PAGEANT OPENS AMID THE APPLAUSE OF 4,000

Brilliant Scene at Arena With Boxes Occupied by Handsomely Gowned Women.

Four thousand people applauded the opening performance of the Boston 1915 pageant, "Cave Life to City Life," as given at the Boston Arena. It was a magnificent spectacle in every way. Twelve hundred people took part in it, a great majority of the performers being pupils of the high schools and their teachers. The youth and beauty of the performers, their enthusiasm and skill in the difficult ensembles and their singing made the pageant one of the finest ever seen in New England. The production is repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening.

The opening performance was termed "Mayor's night." Among the chief executives of New England cities present were: Robert A. Kenyon, Pawtucket; George H. Fall, Malden; James Logan, Worcester; Eugene H. Moore, Melrose; Charles S. Abbey, New Bedford; William S. Woods, Taunton; Charles A. Strout, Portland, Me.; Alfred C. Wyatt, Laconia, N. H.; J. E. Burke, Burlington, Vt.; Henry O. Carpenter, Rutland, Vt.; Henry F. G. Hay, Wes. Brookfield, Mass.

Brilliant Audience.

It was a brilliant and at the same cosmopolitan audience that witnessed the opening performance. The boxes were filled with handsomely gowned women, many of them patronesses of the pageant. The great majority of the audience were those of the city's average citizenship and those who take the greater part in the uplift of a great metropolis and upon whom the success or failure of a great civic movement depends. It was easy to see from the serious interest of the audience and its enthusiasm over the prospects of a better municipality that those present were in hearty accord with the movement for a perfect city.

The young men and women, the latter in a great majority, who compose the army of performers, did their work with fine intelligence, and were thus responsible for the spectacle going off with gratifying smoothness from beginning to end.

Several humored girls from the Roxbury high schools sang beautifully a number of high-class choral pieces, the orchestral music, of a descriptive nature, particularly that relating to the mystical periods of the cave men and the aboriginals, was highly impressive, the methods of showing the contrasts between early and modern New England home and town life were ingenious and full of interest and the purely spectacular features were characterized by artistic taste and admirable judgment.

Many Women Present.

It was distinctively a feminine audience, the women outnumbering the men, even in the boxes. And like all feminine audiences on such occasions it was not possibly entertained, but it paid the great and varied show the compliment of staying faithfully through a long program clear to the very end of the last feature.

The greatest feature of the pageant is the tribe of real Indians, numbering something more than thirty, and including some women and children. Their first appearance on the scene was the signal for a real spontaneous outburst of applause, and their war dances, and various other pictures of aboriginal life, never failed to bring down the house with the termination of each succeeding feat.

The greatest hit of the performance, from an individual point of view, was the original dances of Virginia Tanner of Redcliffe, whose "water dance," "dance of the waves" and "nasturtium" dance were works of art. Miss Tanner was under the direction of Mrs. Lida Vile Wyman. All other dances in the pageant were arranged by Miriam Harris.

The symbolism of Boston and her neighbors, contributed by the Boston Teachers' Club, was a beautiful and impressive ceremony, aided by wonderful lighting effects. Boston, the capital city, was accompanied by seven attendants, presenting the districts of the city proper, Roxbury, Charlestown, Jamaica Plain, East Boston, Dorchester, South Boston and Brighton. The fairy neighboring towns and cities entered and grouped themselves about Boston. Watertown, with its arsenal, was represented by Peace; Weymouth carried the town seal; Hingham bore forget-me-nots, Dedham representing Justice, Lexington represented Liberty, Canton carried the traditional copper bells cast for Paul Revere, and all the other towns and cities were represented in a fitting manner.

Quilting Party.

An old-fashioned "quilting party," acted out by three Roxbury High school girls, the Misses Montgomery, Helen Angell and Genevieve Conroy, was well received by the vast audience, which filled the Boston Arena from floor to roof.

Episode one showed the cave dwel er and his family, the parts being taken by Messrs. Thomas Crosby, Earl Calvin, Walter Todd, Frank West and Misses Hetty Fay, Margaret Franklin and Mary Franklin. Episode two represented the Indian village, and real Iroquois Indians took the parts, giving correct representation of their "green-corn," "big feather" and "straw berry" dances.

The third episode represented the Comlots, a typical early Thanksgiving, showing the real significance of the day, and a Governor's reception. This was a realistic performance and was greeted with and town and city officials from cities adjoining Boston were present at this initial performance of the great pa eant.

The fourth episode showed Boston and her neighbors at the present time, and then went a step further and looked into the future, a performance new to pageantry. The future assimilation of all the various was shown, and the pageant, after the ensemble representation contributed by the Boston Teachers' Club, ended by the entire cast of some 1000 people marching around the hall singing patriotic airs, and with the audience following.

The Boston 1915 civic pageant teaches history along the idea of pageants developed in the towns of Canterbury and York, England, on does more. It is intended to teach people to think about the future and its possibilities.

The pageant will be performed again this evening and Saturday evening with thunders of applause at every call. Mayor's matinee Saturday afternoon. The corps of workers who created the pageant are: Manager, James P. Monroe executive director of Boston 1915; John M. Casey, business manager; Frank C. Brown, dramatic director; Leila A. Clapp, director of the pageant; Frank T. Merrill, designer and costumer; John F. Dyer, musical director of the chorus of 400 and of the orchestra of 175; James Sibley Watson, musical training and Albert M. Kranich, in charge of orchestration and arrangement of music.

Bispham to Sing.

It is expected that Saturday afternoon David Bispham, the noted oratorio singer, will sing the cave-man music, which was written originally for him by Charles Cadman of San Francisco. An accordance is suspended from the roof of the Arena.

Some of the prominent Boston people who attended the first performance last night are: Mary S. Ames, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. W. A. L. Bowler, Mrs. T. J. Bowler, Mrs. Edward Bringham, Mrs. Arthur Astor Carey, Mrs. Caleb Loring Cunningham, Mrs. J. Lowell Gardner, Mrs. John C. Gray, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, Mrs. Roger Lowell, Mrs. William Lawrence, Mrs. D. L. Pickman, Mrs. William S. Putnam, Mrs. William B. Rogers, Mrs. R. M. Saltonstall, Mrs. James J. Storrow, Mrs. Edward Thayer, Mrs. Paul Thorndike, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Henry M. Whitney, Mrs. Roger Wolcott and Mrs. Charles Francis Withington.

TO-NIGHT TO BE SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE 1915 PAGEANT

To-night is "Society Night" at the 1915 pageant in the Boston Arena, and the host of fashionable patronesses for the affair are to attend. Following the pageant the participants will attend a reception and dance. Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews and General William Oakes are to chaperon the affair.

U. S. AND CANADA IN TRADE DEAL

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—A trade agreement between the United States and Canada, which will be thoroughly satisfactory to the business and commercial interests of both countries, is expected to result from the trade conference which has just ended its sessions here. Finance Minister Fielding of the Dominion Government gave out the following statement at the close of the conference:

"The conference between the representatives of the United States and Canada on the subject of improved trade relations has terminated. The whole discussion was of the most frank and friendly nature. While no conclusion was reached, the ground was cleared for a further conference which will be held in Washington, probably early in January. The members of the conference separated with the strong hope that on the resumption of the conference at Washington an arrangement can be reached that will prove acceptable to people on both sides of boundary lines.

"Mr. Pepper, speaking for the American members of the conference, said:

"We leave Ottawa feeling hopeful for a successful issue of the negotiations when they are resumed at Washington. We cannot make a statement as any conclusions which have been reached, because there have been none."

Mr. Pepper explained that there was a general discussion of the situation and the ground was thoroughly cleared of preliminaries so that the January meeting would find much of the pioneer work done.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A number of the old admirers of Rosie Boote, formerly of the Gaiety Theatre and now Marchioness of Headfort, sent her a telegram the other day, "Welcome back to the boards." It was signed by half a dozen names and addressed to Headfort House, the Marquis of Headfort's seat in Ireland.

For weeks past the Marchioness has been arranging an amateur production of "The School for Scandal," drilling a distinguished house party. Three performances were such a brilliant success that an extra show was given in public at Kelso. Lady Headfort played Lady Teazle.

Although of humble origin, the Marchioness has never made a social blunder since she married the Marquis. She has succeeded in snubbing the Duchesses who patronized her, and by dint of hard work and her horsemanship have endeared her to the Irish people.

AMES DETERMINED TO RETIRE LODGE

Following the declaration of ex-Governor Guild, ex-Governor Bates and Speaker Joseph Walker, that they will not be a candidate against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman Butler Ames of Lowell presented today his candidacy for Senator Lodge's seat, and said that if the Democrats really wish to retire Senator Lodge they can elect Ames on the first ballot.

Mr. Ames has been re-elected as a Republican Congressman from the Fifth Massachusetts District. He is out, as he says, before election, to "get" Senator Lodge. The proper time to "get" him, Mr. Ames figures, is when the next Legislature casts its first ballot on the question of a United States Senator from Massachusetts for the next six years.

"Let Them Vote for Me."

"If the Democrats . . . really wish to retire Senator Lodge, the first ballot, to them, will be . . . I have enough Republican votes pledged to turn the trick.

That's the scheme, in a nutshell, as Mr. Ames has figured it out. There won't even be necessity of a conference between the branches. The matter can be settled in the individual caucuses.

Furthermore, Mr. Ames has figured out that enough Republicans and Democrats alike can be induced to do practically consistent.

Mr. Ames has been a severe Senator Lodge for several months. He has opposed him on occasional light on his methods and his political activities. He has opposed . . .

Every right-thinking man, say about 7 per cent of the people, began his direct fight for the retirement of Senator Lodge by announcing the fight now and to the moment of the Legislature ballot.

Says He Is Logical Candidate.

"Senator Lodge," says Congressman Ames, "can be elected on a great many different votes, possibly. It takes 141 votes to elect in a joint session of the next Legislature.

"I shall ask the Democrats, the Republican Legislature, sitting jointly or individually. There is no choice, therefore, for a Democrat to be elected Senator. You can't figure it out that any Democrat has a show with so many Republicans in the Legislature as there are. Republicans are against Lodge. They wouldn't vote for a Democrat as against him. Why should they? Democrats don't mean that a Republican must be elected.

"My plan is sound a lot and with extra emphasis, aside from a Republican Senator . . . It is next to me as I can see. I am Mr. Ames' candidate.

And this is why Mr. Ames places himself as the only one of Republican as "the logical candidate."

He is the fight against Senator Lodge. He was struggled to get other Republicans, but no other possible candidate against Senator Lodge, to make the fight. Mr. Ames has made the fight. But if did make the fight. I ran all the risk. Therefore, I am entitled to the support of all those who believe that the further domination of our state politics by Senator Lodge is . . . I haven't shaved it since and I never will."

"Fight Cost Me Votes."

"My fight cost me votes in the last congressional campaign. I know . . . When I wrote my anti-election letter to Senator Lodge, demanding that he resign to save Governor Draper and the other leaders, I knew that it would cost me votes. But someone had to write that letter. And I did it. All the Lodge Republicans have been hanging at me. I have all the struggle. I am the only Republican who has opposed Senator Lodge and succeeded . . . Democrats in political trouble.

Having made the fight and having taken all the risk, I certainly am entitled to candidate now to be his successor.

"I shall be done on the ballot. There will be absolutely nothing to it as they get of the majority of the Democrats will support me and not Mr. Lodge. On any ballot to be easy select to be his successor . . . I am a pal of 131 Republican members, the Boston Globe finds but his men for Lodge, 15 against Lodge, and 95 are non committal.

Guild's Statement.

Mr. Guild believes a contest would endanger progressive legislation. He says:

"I am a believer in the principles of the Republican party of the present Legislature and I do not wish to see the party split on any question that may arise. I do not want to see the Democrats come in control at this time and in this way control the Legislature and the State. I am for the Democratic position of electing the United States Senator on a joint ballot and not splitting the Republicans in the Legislature into half a dozen factions and perhaps into half a dozen factions and perhaps not never dreamed with these factions. Good party government is the best."

I Said I Wanted Tariff Revision Downward! SEE!!

DEMOCRATS TO REVISE TARIFF

CORRECT TARIFF, WALKER URGES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 11.—A revision of the tariff for revenues only is the aim of the Democratic majority in Congress, it was made today by Democratic leaders following the receipt of the following dispatch from Joseph Walker of the House of Representatives:

"A tariff for revenue only. I believe that the difference in the labor cost of products of most manufactured articles at home and abroad would be covered by a tariff of from 15 to 20 per cent, and to put the tariff on the articles enumerated in the Payne schedule would be to appeal to a protecting profits. Believing that to protect profits means to protect monopoly."

Unite With Democrats.

Representative Underwood is the second man to rank on the two chief house committees (the ways and means and Democratic caucus), and Champ Clark, the minority leader, and Mr. Clark will probably become chairman of the committee on rules. If this is done the stand-patters will have a majority of the committee. There is a vast uncertainty over the organization of the house committees. One thing is the feeling that President Taft will unite with the Democrats in congress to enact legislation that will be specially needed at the extraordinary session.

It is the impression that the President may call an extra session that has the full Senate and several of the committee assignments. The veterans who know the inside workings of the Democratic methods of procedure say that it is just possible that the Democrats will follow the example of the Republicans in June and select the Speaker by the State method, thereby avoid a party caucus.

It is conceded that Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, minority leader of the 1909 session, would be the Democratic for Speaker, is the strongest candidate and the best qualified, and Underwood, backed by all the organization composed of many conservatives, he is to be head at present and ask if seceders will be given the right to win, but the possibility of committees on the House offices may produce a mix up that will completely demoralize the progressive program.

Hail Wilson as Leader.

Mr. Clark is a staunch Bryan man, and the insurgent Democrats say that he should not be placed in the way of the leadership of the address of the former leader.

The name of Governor Woodrow Wilson is being brought as the new leader of the Democratic party, and it is believed that he is consulted as to the future course of the party.

Mr. Clark has expressed himself decidedly in favor of a general revision of the tariff as soon as the Democrats control congress. In this position he will be supported by a great part of his colleagues. His announcement nevertheless has brought up a storm of discussion among the many leading Democrats.

President Taft, it is said, would like to see several of the measures recommended last session attached to the general bill for adjournment of the coming session. These measures include the Canadian reciprocity, the Sherman anti-trust law in the matter of injunctions relating to labor organizations and the bill to enable the states to impose duties during an interstate commerce business, together with a bill to establish parcels post by the postoffice department.

It is decided, however, if these important measures can be written into the statute books before the end of the present session.

It is conceded by the old members that if President Taft should call an extra session of the sixty-second Congress to consider these matters by conjunction with certain amendments of the Democratic schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff he would receive full credit for the legislation.

Members who have put in their appearance at the capital say that one of the matter of committees the question of whether the old method will permit of the proposed scheme to follow the Senate and have the House committees named by a committee on committees will develop soon after the House meets in December.

If the majority of the Democrats and the insurgents join hands in this matter as they did at the beginning of the extra session at the present Congress, March 15, 1909, when the fight was made on the rules, then there will be no question but that the power to appoint committees will be taken from the Speaker. Such a procedure would be in line with the revolution that has taken hold in the Senate and House.

KAISER SNUBS MUNSTERBERG

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The topic of the hour in American and university circles is the marked snubbing of attention the Kaiser bestowed at the university upon Charles Alphonse Smith of the University of Virginia, the new Roosevelt professor, and the chilling formality with which he greeted Hugo Munsterberg, the Harvard exchange professor.

While the two professors published their inaugural addresses, the Kaiser engaged them in conversation. As the exchange processible outranks the Roosevelt chair in age, the Kaiser turned first to Prof. Munsterberg, with whom he chatted barely a minute. Then advancing to Prof. Smith, he chatted with him fully fifteen minutes, while several hundred notable guests, including Ambassador Hill, German cabinet ministers and army officers stood waiting.

The Kaiser closed in talking to Prof. Smith so very much longer than with Prof. Munsterberg that the Harvard psychologist, standing close by, saw the Emperor's back turned to him, cut a positively embarrassing figure. The dissatisfied audience, which watched the incident in astonished silence, couldn't withhold sympathy from one who almost looked as if he were the victim of an intended slight.

Following the ordeal came to an end and Prof. Munsterberg introduced his wife and daughters to the Kaiser. It caused some comment that Prof. Munsterberg did not allow this highly formal function to be performed by the chief lady-in-waiting, who was present for exactly such purpose.

Prof. Munsterberg's friends think his inaugural address over-emphasized his German identity and the German influence at Harvard. Besides asking for many demands upon the personal proficiency.

Prof. Smith created an unmistakably favorable impression. His typical American attributes, his easy laughter, his hearty beginning and kept him in lively good humor throughout his address. His delivery was particularly merry over the assertion that war was unthinkable between the United States and a country which loved the Luther Stocking Tales, headed by Bret Harte, and could quote "Huckleberry Finn."

BIG NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRATIC GAINS

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 11.—Complete returns from all towns in the State show that the Democrats have made great gains in the Legislature. The Republicans have 201 members, a loss of forty-five, and the Democrats 196, leaving a Republican majority in the House of 57. That party had 172 majority in the last House. The Senate will stand 17 Republicans to 15 Republicans, with no choice in one district. This will be a loss of four for the minority party. On joint ballot the Republicans will have a majority of 39, a net gain for Democrats of 100 members.

Final figures in the congressional districts are: First District, Sullowway, Republican, 29,863; Reed, Democrat, 28,623; Sullowway's plurality, 872. Sullowway's plurality two years ago was 7,014, a gain for Democrats of 6,241. Second District, Gallet, Currier, Republican, 23,681; Metcalf, Democrat, 26,755; currier's plurality, 4,296. Currier's plurality two years ago, 10,344, a net gain for the Democrats of 4,405.

MAN SEVENTY-EIGHT WAS NEVER SHAVED IN BARBER'S CHAIR

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Nov. 11.—Jeremiah Kelley, seventy-eight years old, claims the non-barber record for the United States. No barber has ever laid a razor to his face. He shaves his upper lip himself. His chin is adorned by a flowing white beard. He has not shaved his beard for ten years. The last time he did he didn't wish to.

"It was through a mean trick of a supposed friend. I had a fine full beard," says Mr. Kelley. "There was a chap who said he was a barber. I let him trim my beard. He backed it here and there till I was ashamed of my looks. So I shaved my beard off and let it grow out again. I haven't shaved it since and I never will."

Mr. Kelley is also a veteran fox hunter. He has hunted foxes for thirty-seven consecutive Winters.

He loves his pipe and his dogs. He carries four horsechestnuts in his pocket for good luck and he never eats any breakfast.

PARENTS OF 7 KILLED BY CAR

The seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Batey of No. 23 Thurston road, Newton, are to-day orphans as a result of a collision between a carriage in which their father and mother were driving and an electric car. Mr. Batey died from injuries an hour after the accident at the Newton Hospital, and the death of the mother early to-day left the children parentless. The children's ages range between twenty-six and six years.

Mr. and Mrs. Batey were driving home along Boylston street when they attempted to cross the car tracks near Hartford street, Newton Upper Falls. An inbound Boston Worcester electric car struck the carriage and both occupants were hurled to the ground. Mr. Batey was ground beneath the fender of the car. His wife struck upon her head and was rendered unconscious. The carriage was demolished and the horse was killed. The couple were taken to the hospital, but it was found they had been fatally injured and died without regaining consciousness. Batey was employed at the Petree Maiden shops.

FALL OF MUSHROOMS LIKE MANNA OF OLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—A fall of manna from the heavens, such as served to feed the children of Israel during their sojourn in the wilderness, has come upon Washington according to Fred J. Brazeille, expert on mushrooms. He says the abundant shower of tiny edible mushrooms which each morning can be found in the parks near the Potomac is probably of the same sort of growth as furnished food for the famishing in Bible days.

LOST IN WEIGHT AND STRENGTH

WAS PALE, NERVOUS, DEPRESSED AND SUBJECT TO HEADACHES.

Shortness of Breath and Palpitation of the Heart Were Also Symptoms of Anæmia in This Case.

If sufferers from a deficient blood supply could only know that a large percentage of cases could be quickly cured for there is a remedy that is exactly suited for their trouble and it is within the reach of all. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an almost certain blood builder and as a remedy for anæmic conditions will surprise by their marvelous results. patients who have failed to regain health, strength and color by the use of other remedies. The following case is but one of thousands and further proof, from your own locality can be had for the asking.

"I suffered from anæmia or lack of blood for over three years from the time I was sixteen years of age," says Miss L. M. Halladay, of Gordon, Onondaga county, N. Y. "I had a very sallow complexion and was subject to hard headaches as often as two or three times a week. After I had been ill for some time I began to be troubled with nervousness and would imagine all sorts of things and didn't want to be left alone. I was very much run down and lost in weight and strength until I couldn't do anything. I was simply helpless. I had palpitation of the heart and was short of breath especially upon going up stairs. I didn't have any appetite and had indigestion. I had no ambition and was depressed.

"I was under a physician's care and he said I was suffering from lack of blood and that he would give me medicine to build me up but he didn't help me. I had been sick for about two years when a friend of my father told him that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had saved his daughter's life. As she had taken the pills for anæmia I decided to give them a trial. They helped me right along and I took several boxes and was cured. Since then I have taken the pills occasionally as a tonic and find they certainly do me good. They gave me new life and made me feel like a new person. I have been in fine health since."

A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request to anyone interested in the subject that owns Miss Halladay. Write for a copy today.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-All, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure For Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of a patent medicine, as a rule, seem to think that no one will not believe what they claim to cure and every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They seem to class it and their motive is doubtless certain to cure every dyspeptic and to cure back no matter.

In the first place we do not claim it is refreshing to note that the properties of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any such claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is that the indigestion, and various other troubles caused by indigestion, Tablets is a radical cure. They do not claim that it will cure any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or acute dyspepsia, or stomach trouble, but they do say that it is a remedy that will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully endorse.

It is a well known discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in a good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessing which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these Tablets at each meal, this assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cts per package.

HUNT FOR GIRL AND CHAUFFEUR

BANGOR, Nov. 11—John W. Blaisdell, a wealthy coal and wood merchant of New York city, has left here after spending a week in a fruitless search for his daughter, Maude, eighteen years old, who disappeared from her home May 21 last.

About the same time John T. Havens, twenty-eight years old, for eight years the family chauffeur, also vanished.

Mr. Blaisdell has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to her discovery.

Thousands of dollars have been spent in a secret effort embracing a search of cities all over this country and Europe for the girl, and scores of private detectives have been employed. Mr. Blaisdell formerly came from Winterport and has a Summer home here.

Mrs. Havens, wife of the missing chauffeur, has heard nothing from her husband since last May. He left Blaisdell's employ eight months before he disappeared. He made a large amount of money while operating a concession on the board walk at Palm Beach, Florida.

Recent information received by the family caused to indicate that she has been in the city of Bangor, and the father lost no time in coming here.

Havens took several hundred dollars from his savings some weeks before he disappeared. He is said to have told his wife that he needed $5,000 for an aeroplane which he was building. This account it is said he drew from the bank where he and his wife had a deposit.

It was understood by Mrs. Havens that her husband mingled with aviators and that he intended to take up aviation as a profession.

"Nemo," son of "Spinks," is lost. Maybe it was because he wagged his tail the wrong way and said "No" when he meant to say "Yes."

"Nemo is a white poodle pup, and an unusual example of what the Higher education can do for a dog. He is, o was, the pa ticular pet of Stella Ross, seven years old, and the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Ross of No. 67 Edson street, Dorchester.

The is the way that Stella relates the accomplishments and untoward disappearance of "Nemo."

"Nemo is lost. I don't know whether he is stolen or just lost. Anyhow, he didn't come into the house at all Sunday night.

Mamma was out walking and had 'Nemo', too. When she got home she held the door open and said, 'Nemo, do you want to go in the house?' And 'Nemo' said he didn't. How did he say no? Why, he wagged his tail crossways. That means 'No' with 'Nemo' I taught him. And he says 'Yes' by wagging his tail up and down. It's just as easy as can be to talk with 'Nemo.' And he can beg and sit up and carry and—oh, lots of things.

"When 'Nemo' said he didn't want to come in, of course Mamma let him stay out. But when we went to call him in into he wasn't there and we haven't seen him since.

Tears welled into Stella's eyes. But she went on.

Maybe somebody called to him and he went after them, and maybe they just took him away. I hope he'll come back. He's been gone most a week now. Yes, I know we've got 'Spinks' and 'Toots,' but 'Nemo' is my own doggie, all my own. Mamma gave him to me.

It couldn't have been worse, Stella thinks, if all the three kittens and 'Nemo' is the one nearest her childish heart. He was born a year ago. His mamma is 'Spinks,' a white poodle, rather deaf. With 'Nemo' was born 'Toots' his brother. "Toots" is pretty bright, but he hasn't half the trick 'Nemo' has. He can't talk with his tail, for instance. All he can do is bark and you can't tell half the time whether he means "Yes" or "No" or "I guess so." There's never any doubt about 'Nemo' and his talk language—crosswags is "No" and up and down is "Yes," they like that way.

No wonder Pupa Ross is advertising the loss of "Nemo," with offer of a reward.

BONI APPEALS TO THE VATICAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A report from Rome that Count Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, has filed a petition with the Vatican for a Papal annulment of his civil divorce, caused the report that he had taken this action in the hope of marrying Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the famous American financier. "It may seem incredible, but it is nevertheless true," said a friend of the Castellane family, "that Count Boni is contemplating another matrimonial alliance with an American house. He has told his friends that he was more charmed with Miss Morgan than any American woman he ever met. He was introduced to her at a house party at Versailles last year, when she was the guest of Miss Elizabeth Mortimer and Miss Elsie de Wolfe. He is contemplating a visit to America.

"At the present time Count Boni cannot marry and remain a Catholic. His divorce from the American heiress, who is now the Princess de Sagan, has never been recognized by the Pope. As the Count is one of the most ardent adherents of the Vatican party in French politics, he has gone not only his social friends, but his social position, should he marry again without a special dispensation from Rome.

Miss Morgan Bored.

The story of Count Boni de Castellane's plans to ally himself matrimonially with the house of Morgan aroused particular merriment among the friends of the fascinating daughter.

"Miss Morgan met the young nobility before she met a hundred other people of title," said one. "I am sure she found it the greatest bore in him. Her tastes are diametrically opposed to his. She is an ardent believer in the progressive, democratic principles of our American civilization. Castellane stands for the extravagance, the luxury, the pleasures of the old empire.

"Miss Morgan has been said to be the quest of so many men that she is accustomed to having herself pursued. The Paris papers that she was to marry Alphonse Daudet, the son of the famous author of the Children's Court of New York City.

What first started the report that Count Boni was anxious to wed Miss Morgan was a statement to the effect, made by the Comtesse Jean de Castellane at a reception at Versailles March 9 last. The Comtesse is Boni's sister-in-law. When the Count was asked by an AMERICAN representative concerning the matter, he refused to make either a denial or an affirmation. Last February the girl de Paris printed the report that the Count was to wed Miss Mabel Geery, of New York. The Geery family denied the story promptly and vigorously.

Says Marriage Was Illegal.

It was stated to the Rome dispatch that Count Boni made the plea in his petition to the Vatican that his marriage to Miss Gould was illegal, because the bishop of his diocese had never been properly notified. The wedding took place on March 4, 1895, at the home of George Gould, and the ceremony was performed by Archbishop Corrigan, assisted by the Rev. Father James A. Cordial.

Archbishop Corrigan is dead. Father Connelly declined to discuss the matter. A statement was obtained, however, from a high church officer, to the effect that the marriage was in strict accord with the rules.

"The Count presented to Archbishop Corrigan papers from the bishop of his diocese in France of which the Count was a member. These are now on file at the Chancery at No. 23 East Fifty-first street.

N. Y. EXPRESS WAR IS OVER

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The strike of the express drivers, which has paralyzed much of New York's business in the last fortnight and resulted in violence which kept the entire police force busy, has been settled. A meeting of the strikers was held early today, when a new offer from the companies was favorably voted upon. Leaders of the strikers planned to take the settlement agreement to Jersey City late this afternoon for ratification by the New Jersey contingent. The two features of the settlement are:

First—That the companies do not discriminate against any of the men for acts of violence except such as are proven in court.

Second—That the wages and hour conferences are to be adjusted as further conferences to be held in the future.

This settlement does not affect the strike of the chauffeurs. They have individual grievances. The expressmen will return to work on Monday.

The former hours and wages will continue in effect until December 1, but in the meantime these matters will be taken up in conference by representatives of the union and the companies.

REDUCE COST OF LIVING BY EATING VEGETABLES

Dr. Elmer Lee Says It's Easy to Get a Dinner for Two for Thirty Cents.

If the high cost of living was the last factor in election, then we should all be living cheaper in the future.

"All right," says Dr. Elmer Lee, "my scheme of proper food breaks up much of the high cost of living. Dinner for two people for total cost of thirty cents."

Yes, Dr. Lee is a vegetarian, one of considerable standing, too, for he is a former chairman of the Section on Dietetics of the American Medical Association.

He has been delivering lectures on hygiene and food economics. He is a New Yorker now, but at No. 177 West Fifty-eighth street, where he conducts his vegetarian cafeteria, he finds much to interest him in his present task.

Just a Question of Food.

Dr. Lee believes that proper food will solve, and later the problem of costly living and also of disease in general. Based on health and human happiness at large, "improper food," says the doctor, "is responsible for disease, ill health, misery and death."

Dr. Lee is now asked to explain his views on food and health.

"Let me take you back to-night and tell many more," he said.

The luncheon was on hand at the appointed time. Dinner was served on the day desk. It included cereal, a delicious purchase, but included bread and served with olive butter and onions were served in one dish, then boiled potatoes in their jackets and oranges, cooked lima beans and peas. Every thing was fresh and tasteless. With the dinner Dr. Lee served a little beverage, Postum, concluding with an appetizing, if not satisfying, repast.

Must Have Food

"Improper food," Dr. Lee said earnestly, "is responsible for disease, divorce, bum politics, graft, irreligion and ethics, insanity and race-suicide and other evils, and all and every one of human sacrifice and all and every one of human sacrifice and the world, and it hasn't improved its present state, that shows that no one has been found to remedy the primal cause of mankind. That instinct is to eat. We can live without art or literature or concerts or clothes. We can even live without a roof. But we can't live without food. The trouble is that we don't eat properly, living with the wrong kind of food and so living wrong. The result is an array of human sacrifice that is unmatched more than twenty times by epidemics, raging over a period of seven years, and I have proved by statistics and by my own practice that the food of human beings is sufficient to prevent disease and to cure it. Most foods are bad in themselves because they are so-called 'foods' and to the third power because they are so-called 'foods' and they are actually not as well [illegible] as vegetable substances for the assimilation of nourishment in the body.

And Never Eat Fats!

"Of course, there is a great amount of fat in animal substances, including milk, butter, cheese and eggs. Fat is very hard to digest, and should be reduced to never the minimum possible. I myself have not touched fat for years, and should only be used sparingly.

"I undertake to cure any one of any disease in the world, and I do it simply by offering them a proper diet of vegetable foods, which I prepare. There are no more harmless confections. I have never yet found a single child or grown person to take up flesh foods after they once knew how to live without.

"We are living in a fatter I make them eat more. When they want to be thin I have them eat less. I am guaranteed results, and doesn't it sound simple? You see, with the proper vegetable foods have nothing in them that can possibly injure the system, so they may be varied, quantitatively, with no danger.

"Are you a Fletcherite?" was a question.

No, he frowned. "I'm very much against such foolish fads. Chewing is an unnatural habit. None of the animals chew their food, for what looks like chewing is in fact one of two things, simply an unconscious digestive process. The animals work their food with their teeth till they are able to swallow it, and that is all. Human beings, too, should eat nothing so hard that it will not easily form a solution.

"Do you think people eat too much, as well as anything else?" was asked.

"Their diet, eat enough, be answered quickly. "Nearly every one is half sick all the time. That is the real reason for drinking and smoking and eating spices. It is the instinctive craving of the unsatisfied physical organism.

"Drinking water is an unnecessary habit. It is not needed by the properly nourished individual, any more than tea, coffee or the wild birds, that content themselves with an occasional sip.

"Coffee, tea and chocolate, though originally valuable products, have become deadly organisms broken and rendered beneficial by their preparation, we find that beverages they are merely poison. Liquors, also of a valuable origin, are spoiled for food by the process of fermentation. To serve is an unclean drug. Milk, while healthful fat—the richer it is, the worse it is. The skimmed milk dishes, such as heavy cakes and three-story desserts, are a waste of time and labor and a sin. A sensation is the whole which is just as easily and far more healthfully furnished by the juice of fruits.

"Your menus would simplify our work in the kitchen."

"The women would have less than a quarter as much to worry as they do now if the principles of proper nutrition were a household fact.

"In the first place, there would not be any of the disgusting waste we see what to serve.

To Make Cooking Easy.

"The proper way is to follow the seasons and use the various vegetables and fruits as they appear. Then the cooking for the average household is simplified, for vegetables are the easiest things to cook. The average cook learns the proper way. I cooked the seven different ways on one table of dinner to-night over one little gas flame, and in a remarkably short time. And, finally, in most cases it is best to cook each article by itself and allow the diner to combine the various dishes at the table, as his own taste dictates.

"Both sugar and salt may be used in small quantities when they make the food more appetizing, since they are harmless. But high seasonings must be avoided. Ordinary bread made of white flour is the best. We do not eat the white potato, skin and all; therefore no more reason why we should eat 'white wheat bread.' Finally, it is right to eat as many varieties of proper food as you wish, and as often as you feel hungry. Following the seasons in their natural order gives naturally healthful sequence.

"I do not know that my last argument, for economy of cost, is not the best one of all," finished Dr. Lee. "I have noticed that people usually prefer to pay high prices, even when the article is really of inferior quality to one-third the money could secure them cheaper. But my scheme of proper food breaks the back of the high cost of living. Meat per pound of meat is always higher than vegetables or fruit. Then there would be no waste of food, and—not least—the saving in fuel and labor. But the actual price of the food products would be surprising, I know. For instance—if you'll pardon the bluntness—our dinner to-night cost us 15 cents."

And here is the exact account for a dinner of eight dishes for two persons:

Saying which Dr. Lee submitted the table given at the top of this article.

BURGLAR SHOT RICH MAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Henry Rosen, a wealthy shoe dealer and manufacturer, was mortally wounded in a battle with a burglar in his home at No. 103 Madison street early to-day. Rosen was awakened by his wife's screams and grappled with the intruder. The burglar pointed the revolver against Rosen's chest and fired. Then he escaped over the roofs.

CHANGING HIS BOARDING HOUSE

FATHER JAILED, FAMILY IN WANT

Unable to secure food for the eight little children in her West End home, Mrs. Jane Gilck of Chambers street, has pleaded for days with Federal officials to liberate her husband who is in Charles street Jail serving time for a $25 fine. It will be three weeks more before he can secure his freedom unless the pleadings of the woman are answered.

With the present high cost of living she has found it an impossible task to furnish three meals a day for the family of eight, at least when the husband's wages, the only source of income, has been cut off. This has caused suffering in the Gilck household.

Gilck was sentenced on October 28 to serve a sentence in default of payment of a fine of $25 imposed by Judge Dodge of the United States District Court. Gilck had been found guilty by a jury of assaulting Frank J. Bassey, a letter carrier attached to the North postal station.

Mrs. Gilck pleaded last week and she offered to pay the fine herself, but officials said they had no authority. This was the best she could possibly do with her family of eight at home waiting for food, she said. Her plea was refused.

Since that time she has haunted the corridors of the Federal building, imploring officials to release her husband's freedom. She says she cannot provide for her family without his wages. Gilck when he is working she says there is but a meagre rate for her large family and with the revenge of his work cut off the pickin of the family is intricate.

Gilck got into trouble through his anger over some unfriendly letters. He spoke to Letter Carrier Bassey about it, but the latter says nothing of the case as it was not in his youth. Gilck became enraged and assaulted the letter carrier. He was convicted by a jury and the fine of $25 imposed, which he was unable to furnish, and went to jail.

EVANS' RE-ELECTION COSTS HIM $1,053.07

Secretary Wilmot R. Evans, Jr., of Lynn, spent $1,053.07 for his reelection. Of this $353.07 was paid out for the election and $700 for the nomination of Congressman Samuel W. McCall of Winchester, candidate for the office. The report showed his promptness by sending in a return of $400 spent in the campaign.

10-CENT MILK REALLY CHEAP

Professor W. T. Sedgwick, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, made pointed remarks on the relations of cities to the milk supply when he addressed the conference of Mayors and heads of departments assembled from all over New England.

"The milk traffic," said Professor Sedgwick, "because of the many interests and phases involved, is a decidedly complex and baffling problem. I have been studying it as a sanitarian since 1890, and I must confess it is for me to-day as disheartening and difficult as ever. It is at best an elaborate, expensive and complicated system. It is a problem so big that it cannot be handled with care, in order to do justice to all.

"Rigid inspection is needed, but no matter how widespread and careful this system of inspection is, you can't stop a farmer or his hired hand being careless an hour or day after the inspector has been around. That lapse of care means unclean milk which someone will get.

"A campaign of education is necessary. It should be waged in every hamlet, town and city and throughout the country at large. The Department of Agriculture has done splendid work in this line and has been ably assisted by the State Boards of Health and local boards. That's where you must get busy in the cities and smaller communities.

"I consider milk the very cheapest food at 9 cents to 10 cents a quart, considering its high nutritive qualities. It is important that the farmer and consumer obtain clean milk and the consumers ought be willing to pay for it accordingly.

"The people have got to realize this. Many of the consumers are perfectly willing to pay 10 cents for a quart of beer, but complain about giving 10 cents for a quart of milk which is food. They ought to be more considerate about this.

"It is more important that the child drink clean, pure milk at 10 cents a quart than it is that their fathers get cheap beer at 10 cents a quart. The brewer can make a larger profit selling beer at 10 cents a quart than a farmer can selling milk at the same rate.

"We can greatly reduce the unclean-ness in handling and distributing milk, but it's pretty hard to eradicate all the filth that we put on ourselves to eating cooked dirt that it doesn't bother me, but it don't bother much when it's cooked. Our beefsteak and other foodstuffs are carelessly handled, but we cook them.

"Why not cook milk in the same manner? I do every drop I drink. Let us have a public cooking station if necessary and let the Boards of Health urge milk cooking.

"But the Boards of Health can't do it all. They have it all to them. Personally I'm not in favor of centralized power in all conditions. Clean milk, like charity, ought to begin at home.

"For heaven's sake don't depend solely upon the Boards of Health. They couldn't cope with the problem successfully without co-operation. Let every individual and town do its share."

Miss Nethersole is a suffragette, and said she was going to take up the work in this country and would make speeches at meetings if urged by the leaders. CURTISS GOES TO CALIFORNIA

American aeroplane development promises to be greatly advanced this Winter on the Pacific Coast as a result of an arrangement made in this city by which Glenn H. Curtiss, the Hammondsport aviator and world's champion of last year, will hold control of the Los Angeles Motordrome for aeronautical purposes and will establish there a permanent training camp and experimental station.

For several weeks Mr. Curtiss, planning to retire from the field of active flying to try out a number of new and advanced ideas, has been searching for suitable flying grounds in a locality in which wind and climatic conditions are such that all year flying experiments may be carried on.

He finally decided upon the Los Angeles grounds, and the contract giving Mr. Curtiss the control of the new aerial station was signed by B. Meredith Cross, manager of the Motordrome Exhibition and Amusement Company, business manager for Mr. Curtiss. In speaking of the plans of Mr. Curtiss, Mr. Cross said:

"Work will commence at once to get the aeroplanes into shape up to an efficiency standard. The grounds are excellent for flights and weather conditions are usually ideal. It will be necessary to construct a large aeroplane shed and repair house, as the work is completed Mr. Curtiss will be sponsor for a great aviation meet which will be held there in the autumn of 1911. The aviation meet will be of international importance, since it is expected that the master of the famous Wright type of aeroplanes will participate and all the most famous types of aeroplanes will be represented.

"After the meet Mr. Curtiss will settle down to a systematic routine of experimental work, which he has been planning for months and which promises to bring some important new developments into the field of aviation.

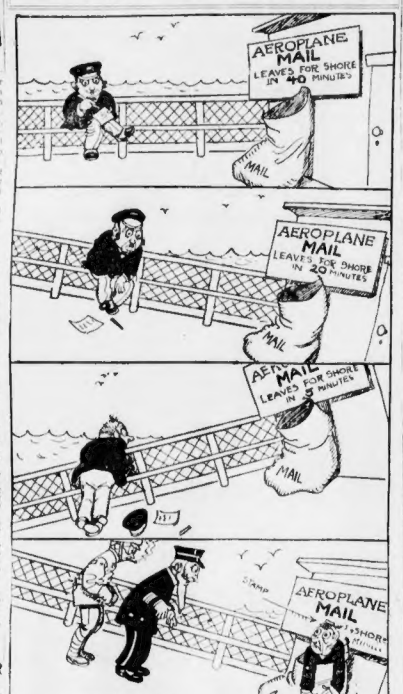
"The aerial factory at Hammondsport, N. Y., will be continued in operation as a factory for the manufacture of aeroplanes. It will be necessary, however, to open an assembling plant and repair shop at the experimental station. It is expected that future pupils of Mr. Curtiss will receive their training at the new station."

Aviator Charles F. Willard and Engineer H. Jay, who will participate in the Los Angeles meet and who will assist Mr. Curtiss in conducting some of his experiments, left on West immediately after the close of the Baltimore aviation meet.

PINCHOT'S SISTER SMOKES ON LINER

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Lady Johnstone, sister of Gifford Pinchot and wife of the British Minister to The Hague, arrived by the White Star liner Adriatic and while on the voyage to Europe at a luncheon to which a party of friends, including Mrs. Campbell, the actress, smoked a few cigarettes to the dismay of several prudish Americans. One of Lady Johnstone's friends also took a puff or two, but after a moment or two of choking, which followed a warning, it was agreed, the rules to the contrary notwithstanding, that the smoke in the saloon should be confined to the men, but that when the ship was nearly the gala season was unusually good, and patient's son, John, of Kansas City, was also present. Many farmers shipped wheat to Kansas requested by telegraph to hurry to the City, St. Louis, Springfield and other points city.

A NEW LIFESAVER



ARKANSAS WHEAT CROP.

HUNTSVILLE, Ark., Nov. 11.—More than 50,000 acres of wheat will be sown in Madison county in this county this year. The wheat crop of farmers in the Richardson Hotel here. The acreage is the largest ever planted in this county. The season was unusually good, and patient's son, John, of Kansas City, was also present. Many farmers shipped wheat to Kansas requested by telegraph to hurry to the City, St. Louis, Springfield and other points city.

CUDAHY SERIOUSLY ILL.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Michael Cudahy, head of the packing house bearing his name, is seriously ill at his apartments here. Physicians say he is suffering from a complication of diseases.

AIRSHIP TO FLY FROM VESSEL

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Workmen are engaged in constructing the launching platform from which J. A. D. McCurdy will try to-morrow to rise from the deck of a steamship fifty miles out at sea and fly to land. The platform is being constructed on the after deck of the Pennsylvania of the Hamburg-American line.

Paul de Fore's steam yacht Wild Duck has been chartered for the day. This fine craft will be at a Hamburg-American pier in Hoboken early in the morning. A score of army and navy officers and an equal number of civilians have been invited to view this novel effort in aviation.

The guests first will inspect the aeroplane as it rests on its launching ways. After that the yacht will go to the rendezvous, fifty miles off shore. At noon the Pennsylvania will anchor for that spot.

Yachts and steamships should be at the rendezvous soon after 9 o'clock. At that time the aeroplane should be made immediately after. If there is no wind, Captain Rintel of the Pennsylvania will set his engines at full speed astern, creating an artificial breeze to enable the aviator to rise. But that is an unlikely occurrence on the Atlantic at this season. It is more probable McCurdy will have more wind than he needs.

Fly to Governor's Island.

After rising from the launching ways McCurdy will set his course for Governor's Island, where he has permission to land. Wireless messages will bring word of the exact moment of the flight. Tall flags announcing the fact will be displayed at once on high buildings uptown and downtown.

An army officer who is probably better informed on every development of the aeroplane than is any other government official says:

"I cannot commend his plan too highly. Success means so much in future warfare. If it is only possible—and one thing, the arousing of Congress to the pressing need of allowing army and navy enough money to develop aeronautics—it will be worth something that no one else has been able to accomplish. What has appealed to me as successful aeroplane was the product of American brain. It seems almost criminal that the army and navy should be unable to advance in the science on account of lack of funds.

Great Value of Airships.

"The ability to launch an aeroplane from the deck of a ship in addition will have a radical effect on warfare. Suppose an invading fleet is approaching it can be 100 or 150 miles off shore, out of sight and out of range of fire, and the aeroplane and with three or four hours' flying obtain an accurate description of the disposition of the defending fleet, naval and land. One aeroplane is an instance of this kind would be of more value than a fleet of the fastest dispatch boats the modern navy destroyer.

"It is certain that within two or three years aeroplanes will be so perfected that they will be able to fly three hundred miles without coming to the earth for a renewal of supplies. Think what this means in warfare.

"That a special aeroplane boat must be designed is certain. I received first encouragement after watching the monoplane flights at Belmont Park. It is easy to launch an aeroplane from a moving ship, and I would suggest the use for the boat on the return to land on a narrow runway. I am convinced that, despite the naval constructors, will invest in design a boat with an absolutely flat and unencumbered deck. There must be room for the machine to run along for a short distance so that it may be stopped gradually."

LLOYD GEORGE MAY END STRIKE

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 11.—David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is looked on as the only man in the United Kingdom who can bring about peace between the striking Welsh coal miners and the colliery owners and efforts are being made to induce him to act as mediator. Business and financial interests in Wales and England which are suffering on account of the coal strike united in the request that the Chancellor of the Exchequer attempt to bring about a settlement.

Already the loss arising from the strike is estimated at almost $250,000. The greatest fear is that the 200,000 miners all over Wales will walk out.

BROWN PRESIDENT SAYS LIVING COST HITS PROFESSORS

The cost of living in Providence, as elsewhere, has enormously increased. Our professors have been called away to other institutions all around us, fourteen of our most valuable teachers having thus been called away in the last two years. Often the teachers who two years ago were single men living in a dormitory are now men with homes and families dependent upon them for support. The present salaries of professors and instructors are inadequate.—From the report of President W. H. P. Faunce to the corporation of Brown University.

INFANT DISEASE CLOSES SCHOOLS

MIDDLEBORO, Nov. 11.—Following an outbreak of infantile paralysis, the three lowest primary grades in the Union street, School street and Forest street schools of this place have been closed to prevent the spread of the disease among the 250 children who attended the three schools. One case has been reported in each school. The outbreak follows a diphtheria scare. Since the infantile paralysis cases were reported, the entire town has become wrought up to a high pitch of excitement. The schools will remain closed about two weeks, by order of the School Committee and Board of Health.

The last case of paralysis was in the home of Fred A. Thomas, of Oak street, where five-year-old Arnold, was stricken. The home has been quarantined.

Every exaggeration in Boston's store advertising emphasizes what we have been saying for the last year and a half. Every claim for honesty is an indorsement of our statements—if not a repetition of our words.

The Newest and Best Junior Styles in Made-for-Service Garments Priced as Low as the Most Commonplace

Misses' High-Class Suits—Heavy boucle cloth, trimmed cleverly with wide hercules braid and buttons. Double-breasted coat, with notched shawl collar. Skirt plain gored, with plaits set around bottom with heading of braid. A most desirable winter suit in navy, brown, green and black. Sizes 14-16-18 ..... 17.75

These suits are of materials we bought in short lengths from a manufacturer. The same fabrics as in suits selling right here two weeks ago at 25.00.

Girls' Heavy Cheviot Coats, red flannel lined—Double-breasted, collar fastened high at neck, turn back cuffs of material. A warm school coat. Colors, red, navy, brown and green. Sizes 6 to 14 years 4.75

A determination to give the best value in Boston at a low price alone prompts us to mark these 4.75. We have satisfied ourselves that similar value is not shown anywhere else for less than 5.00, and in most places no better coats at 6.00.

Misses' Lymansville Cheviot Suits—Plain tailored coat, Skinner satin lined, 32 inch length. Skirt made with new double box plait in back and front. Colors black and blue 14.75

More short lengths bought from the mill much under price, suits of the identical materials having sold here recently at 3.00 to 4.00 higher.

Girls' Double-Breasted Coats of Heavy Cheviot—Semi-fitted back with inverted plaits, velvet collar and turnback cuffs of self-material trimmed with brass buttons. Entire body and sleeves lined throughout with twill Venetian. Colors, navy, cadet, green and brown. Sizes 6 to 16 years 7.50

Our line of 7.50 Coats was broken and in order to complete assortments, we have put garments that answer the same description, but have been selling up to 10.00.

Misses' Mixture Coats—In good, heavy, double-faced fabrics, in gray and tan mixtures. Made with large roll shawl collar of self-material. With belt. Sizes 14, 16, 18 ..... 9.75

We took a Misses' Coat that was excellent value at 12.50, had it made less elaborate, but of similar materials, and offer it as an extraordinary value at the price.

Woolen Dresses for Girls 6 to 14 Years—Black and white checks, made with large red sailor collar, scalloped buttonhole edge, turnover collar and cuffs, black cross grain tie, waist and sleeves lined, full deep plaited skirt and patent leather belt. 4.95

The best recommendation can be given these dresses is to say that we have had to reorder and reorder almost weekly. The materials for each would cost almost as much, and to make them as carefully would take days.

A New Lot of Girls' Coats—Consisting of polo cloth and cheviot; some are strictly tailored; self-lined yokes with turn-down velvet collars. Others are made with plaits and fancy backs, velvet collar and cuffs, trimmings of velvet buttons. Colors scarlet, navy, rose, tan and brown. Sizes 6 to 14 years..... 12.50

This is our best regular line of 12.50 Coats and we find by comparison that they are the equal of coats advertised elsewhere as "15.00 and 16.00 value."

FIND LYNCHED NEGRO.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 11.—Telephone circuits men looking for wire trouble near Montezuma, Ga., found the body of a negro dangling from a pole and cancled up in the telephone wires. This was the negro lynched by a mob, charged with the murder of Marshal Bush of Montezuma.

HER HANDS AND ARMS MADE MARVELOUSLY BEAUTIFUL IN A SINGLE NIGHT

FREE PRESCRIPTION DID IT

Grace Bousen says: "Had anyone told me such wonderful results could be accomplished so quickly, I positively would not have believed it. My arms and hands were covered with freckles, my neck was dark and wrinkled from the use of high collars; my hands were tarried and the knuckles red. All these defects were removed by one application of a free prescription, which I am pleased to give to anyone. It's just as simple as it is effective. Go to any drug store and get an ounce bottle of Kalmo Compound. Pour the entire bottle into a two-quart bottle, and concentrate some of which lazed and fill with water. Prepare this prescription at your own home, then you know you are getting it right. Apply night and morning. It makes the skin soft and beautiful, no matter how rough and unsightly your hands and arms are. One application will astonish you. I have given this prescription to thousands of women and they are all just as enthusiastic as I am. Try it on your neck and shoulders and you will be agreeably surprised."

MICHIGAN EAGER FOR PENN GAME

AMHERST ELEVEN HAS SNAPPY DRILL

AMHERST, Nov. 11.—Amherst's football warriors showed improved form today in their final practice before the game with Williams tomorrow. The backs are perfect on catching punts. As this is Williams's week spot, Amherst will probably play a kicking game. Pinkett was out and limped through a few plays, but Cary did most of the work at center. Pinkett may be able to start the Williams game, but cannot last long.

YALE OFF TODAY TO BATTLE TIGERS

Referee, Hackett, Princeton; umpire, Bomeisler, Yale; head linesman, Hollenback, Princeton; coaches and physical director, Yale.

Substitutes, coaches and physical director, Princeton.

Yale will probably kick off to Princeton, and the game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

EZRA WALEK, who plays the important role of Sheriff in "The Round-Up."

"The Fit of Hilton Clothes is Simply Wonderful"

EZRA WALEK

Hilton-Preste Combination Storm and Dress Overcoat at $15.00

Mr. Walek, who plays the important role of "Sheriff" so realistically in "THE ROUND-UP," is said to be one of the most natural actors playing on the American stage today.

We are particularly proud of the valued compliment which Mr. Walek so enthusiastically pays to Hilton Clothes. To fit men of Mr. Walek's proportions in a ready-for-service suit without a single alteration is indeed something over which we can justly feel proud and a test such as few, if any, makers of clothes could equal.

We invite every "hard-to-fit" man in this city to put us to this test, and we will warrant that no custom tailor ever made a garment for him that fit him better than we can.

Our values are simply startling when you consider the perfect fit, smart style and splendid workmanship of Hilton Clothes.

The White Man

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyrighted by Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1910. From the December Number.

WHEREVER the white man's feet have trod,
(Oh, far does the white man stray)
A bold road rifles the virgin sod,
And the forest wakes out of its dream of God
To yield him the right of way
For this is the law: by the power of thought
For worse, or for better, we make or unmake it
Wherever the white man's progress leads,
(Far, far, has that progress gone)
The earth's interpretation of men recedes,
And always the human tent recedes,
As I see the white man pushes on.
For this is the law of life and of ill,
All things must go down to the stronger will.
Wherever the white man's light is shed,
(Far, far, has that light been thrown)
Though nature has suffered, and beauty fled,
The soul of the race has been thrust ahead
By the might of the race has grown
By the law—be it cruel or kind,
All force comes to the power of mind

The Impecunious Tourist

A SHORT STORY

"CERTAINLY," observed the intellectual hobo, "the life of the tourist has many advantages of it wouldn't be followed by so many perfect gentlemen. I am a man approaching the sere and yellow leaf, and silver threads among the gold shine upon my brow to-day, yet I cannot recall a time when I wasn't hungry. To the superficial onlooker this may seem an affliction rather than an advantage, but I tell you, sir, as one to whom the sunset of life gives mystical love, that there is no greater blessing than a ripe-burning appetite. A turnip tastes better to me than a roast goose to a pinhead, and I envy no man, be he ever so exalted, who can eat silken cotton in a row and enjoy them far more than the satiated business man will enjoy his shrimps. My appetite is as fierce and insistent that any old thing tastes good to me. Even the stewed prunes that they dish up in jail seem to have an ambrosial flavor. This being true, you can imagine what sort of a time I have when I am up against a real dinner, including meat and potatoes and string beans and a piece of pie. Such meals don't come often, of course, but the anticipation of them is worth something.

"Consider the man of wealth and substance who looks with contempt upon the humble tourist. He sits down to a groan ing board with everything before him that a man could dream of, and nothing tastes good to him. He has to use sauces and condiments to jack up his appetite, and even then nothing is such a wonderful thing that he longs to cross his puissant hands upon his bosom and die right there and rest.

"After he has eaten a few ounces he has to take a lot of green pills and powders to ward off dyspepsia, and the chances are that they don't do the work, and all the lower doctors in the neighborhood will be called in to prospect around in his insides and relieve him of appendicitis. Pick up any publication and you will see advertisements of medicines for jaded appetites. I tell you when a man has to take liniment to get his appetite in shape the best thing he can do is to fall off the earth. If you don't enjoy eating there's nothing to live for. Even night as well be a dead loss or a circular saw, or a bound volume of the Congressional Record.

"Another affliction of the opulent man is that he can't sleep unless he goes to a drug store and swallows the contents of half a dozen large-mouthed bottles. If you can't sleep you are in worse shape than the man who can't eat. Sleep, as the poet Rockefeller says in 'The Merchant Prince of Cornville,' is tired nature's sweet restorer. Sleep is all wool and a yard wide. The man who can eat and sleep doesn't need to envy any soul on this footstool. As a result of my wholesome outdoor life, close to the great heart of nature, I am one of the most gifted sympathomatous sleepers in the United States.

"No policeman in this broad land can compete with me when it comes to plain and fancy sleeping. I need no down couch, no silken draperies, no medley scents from the shelves of the apothecary. You could hang me up on a hook by the coat collar and I'd at once engage in the sweet, dreamless slumber of innocence. I do most of my busy cleanses sleeping on hayracks, and when I tell you that farmers have been obliged to prod me with pitchforks for ten minutes at a time in order to wake me you can have some conception of the enthusiasm I throw into the work.

"I might go on for hours exploiting the numerous advantages of the gipsy, free life of the tourist, but I see a blue uniform coming, and a bitter experience has taught me that blue uniform on coming, and a bitter experience has taught me that blue uniform on speaking of their own volition. There usually are policemen concealed in their simple folds, and where there are policemen one has a right to look for big sum vine clubs."

Brilliant Ball for Debut of Miss Cobb

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The first really large debutante ball of the season will be that which Mrs. Charles Bird, who has just returned with her family from Lenox, is to give at the Somerset early next month for that interesting young lad, Miss Hannah Wheelwright Cobb. Several large and brilliant dinners are to precede the happy affair, the largest being that which Mrs. John Curtis is to give at the Somerset Club for her debutante niece, Miss Rose Saltonstall, Mrs. Curtis is to have chaperon her young guests at the ball. Before the Herbert Sears ball for his older daughter, at which Mrs. Bryce Allan will receive with her young relatives, comes Mrs. Oliver Ames' large dinner at the Algonquin Club for Miss Helen Hooper, and on the thirteenth comes Miss Mary Ames' large dance for Miss Elise Ames in the beautiful large ball room of her Dartmouth street house.

That wealthy society woman-bachelor, Miss Adele O. Thayer of Commonwealth avenue, has closed her season at Manchester and has returned to her town house in Commonwealth avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Rand have returned to their home in Brookline from a several weeks' visit with the former's sisters, the Misses Bond, at their home in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle, Jr., and their daughter, Miss Rosamond Castle, have returned from their Marblehead estate and are established for the Winter at their residence in Beacon street.

Dr. and Mrs. George H. Washburn have returned to their Marlboro street residence from an exceptionally long season at their Summer estate in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. George Howland of Paris have arrived in Boston and are to be the guests of Mrs. Howland's mother, Mrs. J. Lowell Stackpole and Miss Alice Stackpole at their Beacon street residence for the holidays.

The Hon. Robert M. Morse and family have returned from their country place "Grassmere," to Falmouth to their White residence in Jamaica Plain. The Davis Cleaveland estate is also returned to their Jamaica Plain estate after two years' absence abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Crafts and their daughters, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Cleaveland, have returned from their country estate at Bridgefield, Ct., to their town house on Commonwealth avenue.

Herbert M. Sears and his daughters, Miss Elisabeth and Miss Phyllis Sears, are again at their commonwealth avenue home after a delightful Summer at their Pride's Crossing estate.

Miss Janet Nesmith of Washington, D. C., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frederick J. Estes, at her home in Edgewood avenue, Brookline. Mrs. Estes has recently returned from a visit to friends in Italy and a tour of France, Switzerland and England.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon Mears (Marjorie Rice) are among the younger fashionables who have decided to spend the entire Winter at the seashore, and the Meareses will be at Beverly Farms all Winter instead of coming into town as they have done in other seasons.

Mrs. George Lee will not come into her town house this Winter as usual, but has planned to remain at her suburban estate in Chestnut Hill. She has disposed of her former residence in Beacon street.

Cards have been issued by Mrs. Horace H. Stevens and Miss Stevens of Beacon street, Brookline, for the at-home on the afternoon of Tuesday, November 15th from 4 until 7 o'clock in honor of Miss Isabelle Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Coolidge of "Gray Cliffs," Newton Centre, who made her debut a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howard Fay and the Misses Dorothy and Mary Fay have closed their Summer estate at Nahant, and are at their town house on Beacon street for the Winter.

Old Honest Number One

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

HER cab is battered out of shape, her smokestack leans awry;
Her loosened drivers whine for oil when she goes creaking by;
But still right sturdily she puffs along the winding track;
Right valiantly she pulls her train to Threshubville and back;
And lovingly her engineer when each day's trip is done
Runs in the roundhouse for the night old honest Number One.

And when, with many a shrilling sound of spent and dying steam,
Behind the arching roundhouse doors she settles down to dream,
His recollection bears him back to days of long ago,
When far-off rails gleamed underneath her headlight's ruddy glow,
Where, over beetling Bookcase Hill, she made that dizzy climb
Ahead of Troop Train, Section Two, and brought it through on time.

The Sioux, behind the rocks that day, poured in a storm of lead
That spattered on her polished sides, but still she forged ahead.
And though they burned Rug River Bridge to form a deadly trap,
Old Number One flew down the pass, and leaped the dizzy gap,
Detrained her troops at Sofa Point, and whistled in delight
While they went forth and sternly put the savage foe to flight.

Ah! That was very long ago, when Number One was new;
Her beauty now has vanished, like the deadly painted Sioux;
But in his heart her engineer still knows she'll answer when
A threatened Nation sounds the call for engines and for men.
And when he draws her cinders at the end of every run
He feels the same old thrill of pride in honest Number One

THE DOUBLE CROSS

A Great American Mystery Story by Gilson Willets

SHE listened with what, to any third person, would have seemed genuine and unbounded amazement. To me, however, she merely acted a part. She did it well, too.

"Kimono!" she exclaimed. "Ah! I understand—at last." She threw me an anxious look. "John, did any one ever accuse you of sleepwalking? No! Well, you know it now for the first time. You are a somnambulist. Last night you entered my room—my very own room—in your sleep. You went to my wardrobe and out of it took my Japanese kimono and carried it out of the room. That's all the truth—all the fact—there is in your tale of woe. All the rest—you dreamed."

"Many thanks," I said, ironically, "for conceding that a Japanese kimono, an unlaundered kimono, figured in last night's experiences. But how did you know that I carried your kimono out of your room?"

"Because, John, it is missing. I must tell you that I had a dream, a scary dream, that woke me up. I got out of bed, lighted he candle and decided that I would read awhile. I went to the ward robe to get my kimono, but—it was gone. I wonder," she concluded, speaking as if to herself, "why you carried the kimono into the stranger's room? Let's go see."

"What was the scary dream?" I asked, pretending to give credence to her report concerning the happenings of the night, for I perceived that other conflict, the battle with her wit, would be hopeless.

We walked toward the stranger's room. "In my dream," she now vouchsafed, "a man came to my bedside, took my right hand in his and very gently pushed up the sleeve of my nightdress. He had pushed the sleeve up as far as my elbow, when suddenly he dropped my hand, peered out through the window-grating, listened intently, and then struck a match and—oh, John, it was terrible! With the striking of the match the man vanished and in his place I beheld a cross of fire—yes, John, a burning cross, a cross as tall as a man, and with arms as far outreaching, a cross all flames that flared and dashed toward me. As if flamed by a big wind it came on—"

"Yes, John. And, as you will find now, you must have been in the stranger's room. Then, while you were in there, you dreamed that I inhabitated the kimono, and that you prattled to me. Poor boy!" she added, with mock sorrow. "I wonder if sleepwalking is curable! But," abruptly changing her tone to one of perplexity, "where's the kimono now?"

We had entered the stranger's room. Swastika was there, standing up the bed.

"Swastika," cried Felipa, "did I leave did you find anything of mine in this room last evening?"

"No, senorita mia, nothing—of course not."

Felipa then, with furrowed brow and great picture of being puzzled, went into her own room, while I stood at her window watching her. She opened the door of her wardrobe and—the Japanese kimono hung in its place.

Pretending to be much mystified she came back to the corridor, saying: "John, you are not the only sleepwalker. I'm one, too. I walked to that wardrobe in my sleep last night, and I dreamed that the kimono was missing."

Then, Felipa, diplomatic relations between us are restored?"

"Yes, John. We're both eaten of the lotos-weed. Let us—forget all this."

Lotos-weed? Forget all this? The very words she had used when we met in the stranger's room in the night.

But just then a great bell out in the patio jangled furiously and she cried:

"My father is arriving. Come into the patio and see how the people greet him."

So I had no time just then to tell her that, in using those words, "Forget all this," she had betrayed herself at last, betrayed the fact that she was playing a deep game with me—playing a game to shield her self-esteem with the mask in the mask.

Nevertheless, I decided to say no more to her about the strange seems of the night. I would indeed, forget all this until I could ascertain whether, in very truth, Felipa bore "the sign." That was the essential thing for the present. I would let nothing interfere with my quest of the proof—"on the right arm just below the shoulder."

The bell in the patio was still ringing past upon past.

"They always ring the bell like that when my father returns after a long absence," Felipa explained. "It lives notice that the lord of the hacienda has—well, come into the patio, John."

CHAPTR XVIII.

Don Justino's Coming.

IN the patio were the thousands or more Aztecs of the night before, all waiting to greet the Don—the ensemble for another act of an opera of "The Land of the Aztecs."

On a horse near the archway and facing into the patio as that all the peons could see him sat Yaqui, the splendid major-domo, his white mantle flowing picturesquely from his shoulders.

"Don Justino comes" Yaqui called, in a loud voice.

Silence pervaded the "stage." And Yaqui continued:

"Don Justino! Chief Magistrate of La Land! Judge of the Mountains and the Plains!"

"Senor!" cried hundreds of peons.

"Lord of the land! Master of the Mines!" Yaqui added.

"Senor!" responded the peons.

"Patron and Protector of the Aztecs!" Yaqui concluded.

"Viva Don Justino!" shouted the Aztecs.

Don Justino had appeared in the archway, on his horse. He now dismounted and, leaning on the arm of Padre Aurelio, limped across the patio, every step seeming to give him pain. After a wave of his hand to the Aztecs, he and the padre advanced to where Felipa and I stood at the little door leading into the garden.

Here was a man in ten thousand. Tall, straight as the pine of the forest; the bearing of a commander of men; thick, snow white hair, mustaches and goatee; a long flowing Spanish cloak of black velvet; in every respect the grandee.

Before greeting his daughter his eyes swept over me in a comprehensive survey. Then, speaking first to Felipa:

"Blessing, my daughter!"

Alvarado Again

Then, to me: "And to you, my son, greeting!"

We went to the corridor, sat down and proceeded to get acquainted, the Don meantime making so careful a study of my features that I felt uncomfortable.

There, after saying that he was more than pleased to welcome a guest sent to him by his friend Don Porfirio, Don Justino said:

"Pardon, senor. Was Leon Alvarado a relative of yours?"

"Everybody asks me something of that sort," I replied. "No, no relation. You know him?"

"Yes, slightly. We met once or twice at the Palace of Chapultepec. Alvarado and Escobedo, of Buenos Ayres, were frequent guests at the palace—though my eyes were never treated to the delight of seeing the incuitous Golden Senorita, as she is called, Alvarado's wonderful financier. He did more than any ten men in Mexico to influence the investment of American capital in this country—in the development of railroads and mines. He entered mines himself here in Guanajuato—and it will come day soon into the hands of Leon Alvarado's son. I know no one more than he, senor, senor—but—will you pardon a personal remark?—you might be that son, so much do you resemble the father."

"I told the Senor St. Johns that very thing, Felipa says. "And he has seen the Senor Alvarado's ward, too—the Golden Senorita. I wish I might meet her, Felipe, dear, cannot you arrange it—the next time we open our house in Mexico City?"

"I am told," I put in, "that the Golden Senorita is devoted to the man whose double I have the honor to be—Leon Alvarado's son."

"Yes," the Don said. "They say he—the son—arrives in the States. The marvel is that he can stay away from the Senorita Alva, who is said to be as gracious as she is lovely."

The Sword Stick

A little while afterward Yaqui came forward to tell the Don that the corridor room in the Administration Building was filled with peons, awaiting the pleasure of the Chief Magistrate of the district.

"True, Yaqui," the Don said. "Court sits to-day. My peons, senor," he added, thing for the bones of three-score when explaining the situation for my benefit, one slips on the cobbles of the hunch-"were paid much either last evening. And, backed streets of Guanajuato. It was after pay-day, many offenders—ah, nothing serious!—are brought before me Pardon me for one little hour. I shall then be at your service for the business that has given us the honor of your company."

He attempted to walk away unaided, and the effort was painful.

"Diablo," he exclaimed. "It is a bad

POLITICIAN WEDS A STAGE STAR

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Nov. 11—David S. Rose, five times Mayor of Milwaukee, Wis., was married at his Summer cottage at Pine Paw Lake, to Mrs. Rosemady Whitney, a former stage beauty and operatic star, well known as Rosemary Glenn. The only witnesses were the ex-Mayor's two children, Mrs. Truman D. Keiter of Scottsville, Wis., and Earl S. Rose, of Chicago, and his secretary, Dan F. Reiff. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. A. Masson an Episcopal rector of Riverbend, L. I.

Mr. Rose is fifty-four years old and has been twice married before. His bride is thirty years his junior. He did not state in the license issued for the marriage on Tuesday whether or not she was a divorcee, or her first husband was dead. Mr. Rose, a well-known Democratic politician, is a dominant figure in Wisconsin Democratic politics. At the national convention of his party at Kansas City in 1900, Rose led the fight in the preliminary organization of the convention against a repetition in the platform of a silver plank, and on that issue was defeated for temporary chairman by Judge Parker, the New York Democratic national committee at St. Louis, which nominated Alton B. Parker for President. Rose was a large factor for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

He has large wealth, among his assets being valuable mining properties in Arizona and is well known as a sportsman. He is one of the foremost expert bowlers in the United States.

His romance with his bride of today had its beginning in New York two years ago when Henry W. Savage's star in the Merry Widow" was in the first flight of the part of the Milwaukee Mayor. He admired an attractive girl in the cast and showered his wealth upon her.

The new Mr. Rose is a Bostonian by birth and comes of a Hungarian musical family. She has played leading parts in "The Sleepy King," "Mam'zelle Quiller" and "The Prince of Pilsen." She has also sung a model with the United States Marine Band.

A cable has been sorted out for the reduction of cable rates one-half, according to President Cornelius H. Mackay of the Commercial Cable Company and the Postal Telegraph Company. He said a permit for the cable has already been issued and that the price will be cut to 12½ cents per word after January 1. The present rate is 25 cents per word, 12½ cents per letter, 25 cents per figure and 25 cents per address. The Commercial Cable Company will offer letter telegrams at one-half the rate charged for "night" messages and telegrams at a reduced rate.

SETS NEW WORLD'S RECORD FOR CORN

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 11.—Peter C. Supervisor of Grandby, a town in central Massachusetts, was given the distinction by the New England Corn Exposition judges of having raised a new world's record for corn production. In addition Mr. Bois was also awarded a prize for having raised a new record was made on one acre of land from which Mr. Bois harvested 140 bushels of reindeer, grown on the ground in a harvested time. Mr. Bois's record shelled corn, which was reduced to equal 103½ bushels on a scientific basis.

OBADIAH GARDNER CLAIMS 43 VOTES

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 11.—Obadiah Gardner of Roxbury, one of the candidates for Governor on the Republican ticket, claims that he will have forty-three votes on the first ballot at the legislature on January 4, which will be the first session of the legislature in January. He was a member of the legislature in 1907. Mr. Gardner is the first candidate for Governor to claim a definite number of votes before the meeting of the legislature. Under the new law, which provides that the governor shall be elected by the people in Portland on the second Monday in January, the legislature will meet on the first Wednesday in January. Mr. Gardner's claim of 43 votes is based on the assumption that the Democratic vote will be divided between the Democratic candidate, Judge Haskell, and Governor Plaisted, who will be a candidate for the legislature.

PAGEANT COMMITTEE PLANS BIG FEATURE

The Pageant Committee of "The World in Boston" has formulated plans which promise to make the pageant of "Dark Ages and Light" the biggest feature of the attractions of exposition in Mechanics Building. It will be a memorable and musical performance participated in by several hundred people from 500 clubs in Greater Boston.

PLAN BOSTON FEDERATION

By the apportionment of a committee to work out a plan of federation for the cities and towns in the Metropolitan District of Boston, the Chamber of Commerce has taken on a definite step toward public action in making Greater Boston a reality.

The committee is composed of well known residents of the cities and towns specially interested in the movement for closer federation. Moses G. Bennett of Boston is chairman and the other members are Sidney Foster Baxter of Malden, George Hamilton Gray of Cambridge, William M. Prescott of Newton, George Hutchinson of Newton, Robert Love of Somerville, Reginald T. Hoddins of Milton, Lewis Parker Hall of Brookline, Robert A. Woods of Boston and Sydney B. Whittington of Lexington.

Silent on Annexation.

The duties of the committee are specifically given by the Chamber of Commerce to promote discussion of the fact that the cities and towns in Metropolitan Boston are commercially and industrially allied, to bring about a wider understanding of the extent which it would be to Boston if the best were universally recognized, and to report what method of federation between the cities and towns in the Boston district is necessary and advisable, in order to accomplish the above objects. In appointing this committee, the Chamber of commerce takes no position on the question of annexation.

The work of the Chamber for a Greater Boston goes much further back than the agitation which followed the recent announcement of the population figures of the United States census. Last winter the Municipal and Metropolitan Leagues began giving consideration to the matter in connection with the city and state finance. This simply provided a means for coordinating the executive head of the various municipalities in the district, and was proposed to bring together representatives of the suburbs that a definite program of co-operation might be worked out. This program was submitted by the Chamber's committee and accepted at that time.

Some Boston Figures.

On May 27, the Municipal and Metropolitan Committee opened the meeting again to its recommendations on June 1, a letter was sent to 4,000 persons presented to the various suburbs which said in part:

"Within Municipal Boston there were, in 1905, 2,745 manufacturing establishments and in the rest of industrial Boston 2,125 manufacturing establishments, or in the industrial Boston 4,870.

"Within Municipal Boston, $151,562,822 was invested in manufacturing establishments, in the rest of industrial Boston, $119,520,626, or in the industrial district as defined in the recent district $311,088,856.

"The value of the products of the manufacturing establishments in Municipal Boston, 59 to 0 wage-earners, were $203,722,000, in the rest of industrial Boston, 101,521, in the whole industrial district, $305,243,000.

"The value of the product of manufacturing establishments in Municipal Boston was $101,159,178, in the rest of industrial Boston, $222,960,197, in the whole industrial district, $337,254,000.

Disadvantage to Hub.

"In 1905, 205,000 persons in the Municipal Boston, 259,273 in the rest of the industrial Boston, and 1,554,636 in the industrial unit, the real Boston.

"Boston pays more than is required in any other section of the United States, and even in the industrial Boston itself the figures given above show that the industrial Boston, but those of the Municipal Boston alone, under the present law, Boston in this respect is not generally recognized as a manufacturing city, and people look upon Boston as a city having at the most 600,000 inhabitants. Within a year or a year and a half, whether they look upon Boston as a city of 600,000 inhabitants or 1,554,636 inhabitants, whether they think of the value of our manufactured product as $101,000,000 or $337,000,000, will make no great real difference to our industrial prosperity, but it will make a very great difference to the attitude of the outside world."

SUFFRAGISTS WANT COUNTRY RENAMED

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The United Equal Suffrage Societies of America will be the name of this country, if the suggestion put forward by Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, corresponding secretary of the National Suffrage Association, is adopted. Mrs. Dennett spoke at a jubilee meeting of the suffragists in Cooper Union to celebrate the victory of equal suffrage in the State of Washington. She made her suggestion in seconding a resolution of congratulation proposed by Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, congratulating the men of Washington on the courage of their convictions and the whole Northwest on its progressiveness. The resolution was passed unanimously.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S GREAT EDUCATIONAL COMPETITION

For BOYS and GIRLS of Boston and New England

$2,000 IN CASH PRIZES

The race is still on. More and more contestants are coming up with the leaders. Those who made a good start have a slight advantage, but the other runners are rapidly getting on equal terms. Every athlete is getting into his stride and beginning to feel the spur of rivalry. Every contestant sees in his mind's eye a gleaming prize stretched out for him. He thinks he can almost touch it. It seems so near, and yet he knows the race has only begun. Boys and girls, the prize you are striving for is almost within your grasp, too. The racecourse is not difficult, nor is the race a strain on your muscles and muscles. You are running along, bounding over the soft earth, the day is pleasant, and your parents and friends are at hand to help you on. They are all anxious that their favorite should win the prize. Do not disappoint them. Try your best to gain the victory, and by your efforts not only bring reward to yourselves, but joy and happiness to those who are interested in your success.

Contestants may send in as many answers as they may desire. The contest is open to puzzle pictures, but all answers must be on coupons clipped from the BOSTON AMERICAN.

7. There will be seventy-seven pictures published, one each day of publication, daily and Sunday. All you have to do is to tell what each picture charade represents, giving the name of the city, town, river, song, or whatever it may be.

8. Preference will not be given to early list, but all must be sent in within one week after the last picture appears.

9. Awards will be made by the Contest Editor, whose rulings and decisions shall be final. The correct answers to the series of pictures will be filed with the First National Bank, and as soon a week previous to the close of the contest.

10. A book containing the list from which the cities of the picture charades are selected will soon be ready. Send ten cents to the Boston American Educational Contest Editor to cover cost and postage, and a booklet will be sent you. AMERICAN WANT "ADS" BRING QUICK RESULTS

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STRONGER TONE IN STOCK LIST

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Losses and gains in prices were about equally divided during the early trading in Wall street to-day, though trading was active in most stocks.

Substantial fractional gains were made in some stocks, while others dropped almost a point. Shortly after the opening a firmer tone prevailed and prices began to move upward, early losses in many instances being wiped out and gains substituted.

Union Pacific, quoting an early loss of half a point, quickly rallied, and within ten minutes was quoting a gain of more than a quarter. Southern Pacific, which also opened weak, developed strength. Reading was another of the groups quick to display strength after opening with a loss of almost half a point. This stock not only made up its loss but was ¾ of a point above its closing price.

The list shares, which opened weak, later developed strength under leadership of Great Northern preferred, which was quoting a gain of more than a point. The common of this stock was also up a point, a substantial fractional gain. Steel began with a loss of half a point, but quickly began to move upward.

Considerable activity prevailed in American Smelting, which for the past few days had been extraordinarily dull, the gain over yesterday's closing being 1 point. Utah Copper opened unchanged, while Utah and Nevada were quoting small fractional gains.

Trading on the cotton market was active with prices seven to eleven points higher.

There was extreme activity on the curb market with fractional gains in most stocks. Americans opened dull and irregular on the London exchange, but soon developed strength and in the late trading were quoting gains. The American railroad stocks were particularly strong.

AMERICANS SEEK AUSTRALIAN GOLD

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Americans are joining the rush for the new gold fields in the Yilgarn district of West Australia, glowing accounts of the richness of which have been cabled here. The rush to the fields continues unabated, and Bullfinch, in the heart of the belt, is described by miners, after an official visit to the mine, as the greatest gold field in the Commonwealth. Goldfinch, which adjoins Bullfinch on two sides, according to a triple monopoly has been opened to American speculators, who desire options.

Gentlemen, Ladies, and Others, Learn a Lesson from THIS Cow

If You, as a HUMAN, Could Equal Her Record as a COW, You Would Be Doing Very Well, Indeed

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner

The State of Missouri maintains a splendid institution in its public university. And in this University of Missouri there is a college of agriculture that sets an example to all the rest of the country and to the world. We have already told you something about this admirable college.

It teaches young men and old men—boys that want to begin farming, and men that have been farming for years—the very latest discoveries in the science of farming, and all of the old, well-established truths.

This university and the agricultural college are a credit to the State, to the Governor, and to the Legislature of Missouri, which fortunately treats the university generously.

They teach the farmers out there to make the earth more richly productive. They make domestic animals more valuable, and they add especially to the value of the brains inside the heads of young men who go there to study.

The day will come when there will be many more such universities and agricultural colleges teaching men to produce food—and not a single West Point or Annapolis teaching men to kill each other.

To-day, we want to talk to you about ONE single creature in the agricultural college of Missouri—namely, about the cow named "Missouri Chief Josephine"—the pride of the college and the envy of the world, whose picture appears here.

This cow was raised as an example for the farmers by the professors of the university.

And the achievements of this cow and of other splendid animals on the farm have done all that was necessary to answer occasional criticisms and sneers about "book learning in farming."

This cow, ladies and gentlemen, is the champion of the world in her line, and she sets an excellent example to all of us human beings.

She holds the world's record for milk production in a continuous period of six months.

During the six months that ended on July 17th, 1910, this earnest, conscientious animal produced 17,008.8 pounds of milk.

This means that every day for 182 days the cow produced 93.4 pounds of milk, or 46.7 quarts, every day.

This one single cow, properly fed and cared for, produced each day enough milk to give a large glass to about two hundred children. Rather a good daily task for an humble cow, asking nothing but fresh grass, bran, PURE AIR, and decent treatment.

Please look at the picture of this cow with respect in your eye. For here you see a living being THAT ACTUALLY DOES ITS VERY BEST.

We beg women to notice that this cow is not unnatural.

She hasn't any tight belt around her waist. She hasn't got her hair done up in a bunch on top of her head. And she doesn't take dead hair from other cows and cover her head with it. She doesn't wear any cast-iron corsets to make her hind legs look narrower. She hasn't got a collar lined with whalebone choking her neck.

She has her heels quite flat—no high heels that hold her up in the air and put her whole system out of balance.

This cow is perfectly natural, even and comfortable. Her heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, lights and all her other apparatus ARE LEFT ALONE. She wears no corset and smokes no cigarettes.

That is why she gives more than forty-six quarts of milk a day.

And that is why she is the champion cow of the world. That is why her calves are healthy and worth their weight in silver.

That is why women—millions of them—would be very much better if they would study and imitate this cow.

There is a lesson also for men in this cow from Missouri.

This cow WORKS CONSTANTLY. She lives normally. She gets plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air, she takes no stimulants, she doesn't smoke, chew, gamble or brag. She earns her living, and probably is proud of the fact.

How much improved this world will be when we are able to produce ladies and gentlemen fit to be compared, as human beings, with this cow, so well developed by the wisdom of the agricultural college at the University of Missouri.

SAY SMITH, YOU'RE VERY LATE AND YOUR WIFE WILL MAKE A ROW! NOW'S YOUR TIME TO ASSERT YOURSELF. TELL HER YOU WON'T ANSWER ANY QUESTIONS
MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS, UNDERSTAND?
GO AHEAD, NOW, SMITH, DON'T LET HER HENPECK YOU.
YOU SHUT UP AND LEAVE THIS HOUSE!
I WANT YOU TO UNDERSTAND THAT I WON'T BE QUESTIONED ABOUT WHERE I'VE BEEN. I'M MASTER IN THIS HOUSE, AND,— HAW, HAW, HAW!
DISSIPATED WRETCH!

Time Works for Good

WRITTEN FOR THE "BOSTON-1915" PAGEANT

By FREDERICK ALLISON TUPPER

I SHOW the progress of the human race:
From darksome caves man's spirit led him up,
By slow degrees, unto a high estate,
Through storm and stress and struggle unto peace—
Time works for good.

YOUR fathers, fearless of the ocean storms,
The rock-ribbed shores, starvation, savage foes,
For you prepared the country of the free,
Yourselves you honor, when you honor them—
Time works for good.

LIFE grows more strenuous with the rush of years,
Man's victories over earth and sea and sky
Have conquered space and threatened our domain,
Have raised him high above the ancient Kings—
Time works for good.

THE astonished eagles scream in wild surprise
To see strange human forms scale Heaven's walls,
And baffled flutterings of defeated wings
In headlong flight announce man's victory—
Time works for good.

MAN rushes on in chariots of fire,
Speaks to his friend a thousand miles away,
O'er ocean sends his wireless messages,
Or makes the throbbing wire convey his thoughts—
Time works for good.

THERE still are conquests for mankind to win
In realms above the plane of time and space,
For grander cycles still are near at hand
To bring a larger and a better life—
Time works for good.

THOU three-hilled town by the Atlantic wave,
Loved as no town was ever loved before,
Assume thy place as radiant first and best
Of all earth's cities whether far or near—
Time works for good.

HARMONIOUS nations fostered by thy love,
And consecrated to the public good,
With grateful hearts salute the starry flag,
And proudly sing: "My Country, 'tis of thee"—
Time works for good.
